Assistant coaches will also be available after practice sessions.

TV cameramen and photographers may shoot only from the sidelines at practice. Please refrain from edging onto the playing field in the interest of getting a better angle. To do so may result in injury to players and/or photographer.

Dialogue between players and coaches at practice is considered confidential. Please use discretion in reporting practice in such areas as plays, formations, and injuries. Television cameramen may not shoot formations. If there is any question in your mind about what may be reported, please ask Coach Majors.

Media representatives are asked to refrain from trying to reach players late at night. Normally, there is ample time during the day to interview them. Player telephone numbers will not be released by the Pitt Sports Information Office.

Postgame Interviews: The postgame press conference for Pitt home games will be held in the Stewart Auditorium, located inside Gate 5 of Pitt Stadium. Coach Majors and, generally, the visiting head coach will attend the press conference. A few select Pitt players will also be available for interviews. Requests for players not appearing at the postgame press conference will also be accepted.

Pitt Radio Network

Pitt football games, home and away, will once again be broadcast over a network across Pennsylvania with 1250 WTAE-AM operating as the network's flagship station.

For the 20th straight year, Bill Hillgrove will be the "Voice of the Panthers." Hillgrove's concise, accurate, and descriptive style truly paints the picture for Pitt fans listening throughout the network. Prior to taking over the play-by-play duties, Hillgrove served as color analyst from 1970-73 when the late Ed Conway provided play-by-play description. Hillgrove has also been doing play-by-play for Pitt basketball since 1969. A popular and well-known Pittsburgh sports personality, Hillgrove has been WTAE's sports director since 1979, and has long been a Pitt ambassador of good will. He supports all Pitt athletic teams, attends Golden Panther functions, and emcees numerous events around the city.

Hillgrove is a 1962 graduate of Duquesne University.

Joining Hillgrove in the booth for their 18th season together is Johnny Sauer. The Hillgrove-Sauer team first broadcast a Pitt football game on September 14, 1974, when Pitt defeated Florida State, 9-6, in Tallahassee. Sauer, who played on Army's tremendous 1945 team which featured Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, coached at The Cradell and led the College All Stars against the NFL Champion Green Bay Packers in 1966 and 1967. Sauer missed the 1983 and 1990 seasons with the Panther broadcast team.

Bill Hillgrove is in his 20th season as play-by-play announcer for Pitt football.

Hillgrove and Sauer will join forces to bring an entertaining post-game report to listeners: Hillgrove will conduct locker room interviews with Coach John Majors and key Panther players, while Sauer will field telephone calls from interested listeners following the post-game report.

WTAE will once again present the weekly Panther SportsLine call-in show, hosted by Bill Hillgrove and featuring Pitt Head Football Coach John Majors. The show airs each Monday throughout the football season from 8 p.m. - 9 p.m., giving football fans an opportunity to chat one-on-one with Coach Majors.

The Johnny Majors Television Show

Debuting in Pittsburgh this fall is "The Johnny Majors Show," a weekly half-hour television show featuring Pitt Head Football Coach Johnny Majors, the Pitt football program, as well as other aspects of Pitt athletics.

The show, which will be hosted by Bill Hillgrove, will have a rather unique distinction, in that it will originate from a different elementary school in and around the Pittsburgh area each week.

The Johnny Majors Show is a product of AdCraft, a television production and marketing company headquartered in Louisville, Kentucky. The program will air on WTAE-TV on Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

1993 PREVIEW

BACK TO THE
FUTURE

1993 Outlook

When John Majors was named the University of Pittsburgh's 31st head football coach on Dec. 11, 1992, he accepted the job with great pleasure, but realized this challenge may be much more difficult than when he took the reins of a struggling Pitt football program nearly two decades ago in 1972.

Majors had his first opportunity to evaluate the 1993 Panthers this spring. And when spring drills concluded on April 17 with Pitt's annual Blue-Gold game, Majors' evaluation of the squad remained virtually the same as the one he had when he accepted the Pitt job on that wintry December day.

"Not much has changed as far as what I thought we had lacked in talent since the first day here," Majors said. "But I have had a chance to get to know most of the players now and I believe we have a nucleus of players from which to build."

"The thing that pleased me the most was the improvement I saw in the players' work ethic and desire," added Majors. "From that perspective I would have to consider the spring a success."

But Majors knows there are many questions that need to be answered prior to Pitt's Sept. 4 season opener at Southern Mississippi. Majors' main area of concern lies on the offensive line, where replacements for at least three starters — and possibly a fourth with the uncertain status of Reuben Brown (indefinite suspension) — need to be found. Another concern is at quarterback, where record-setting quarterback Alex Van Pelt's successor must be established. The leading candidates are redshirt sophomores John Ryan and Ken Ferguson, both of whom have seen limited game action. Ryan, however, has a slight edge in experience, playing in nine games and attempting 47 passes, compared to Ferguson's two games and two pass attempts. The two quarterbacks will have little competition from other candidates. Former Pitt quarterback Rob Nogay decided to transfer early in spring drills, leaving freshman recruit Pedro Gonzalez of Miami as the only other quarterback in the fall.

Defensively, the squad is young but the unit returns eight starters from the 1992 team. Also returning is redshirt sophomore linebacker Tom Tumulty, who missed all last season with a torn chest muscle, giving the defensive unit nine players who have extensive game experience. A new defensive scheme (4-3 instead of 3-4) under new Defensive Coordinator Chuck Driesbach will create competition opportunities at virtually every position. The biggest question mark is the development of the secondary, which lost two of its four starters — cornerback Vernon Lewis and free safety Lex Perkins — from last year. A major factor for the defense will be the status of several key performers who were injured or nursed injuries during spring drills, namely defensive linemen Matt Hosityk, Mike Mohrning, and Dell Seagraves.

Majors, a strong proponent of special teams, vows Pitt's special teams will be improved, evidenced by the amount of practice time spent on the units during spring drills. Majors, however, will have to replace Pitt's starting placekicker and punter from last year, and will probably have to rely on help from his freshman class. Kevin Leon returns as an experienced punter after missing all last season. The placekicking duties during spring drills were manned by walk-ons.

OFFENSE

The obvious question mark offensively is who will replace Van Pelt, who finished his career third in the NCAA in career passing and total offensive yardage as well as becoming Pitt's all-time passing and total yardage leader. Competition will be slim; redshirt sopho-

Junior tailback Curtis Martin will look to high-step to big yardage in 1993.

"I have had a chance to get to know most of the players now and I believe we have a nucleus of players from which to build. The thing that pleased me the most was the improvement I saw in the players' work ethic and desire. From that perspective I would have to consider the spring a success. Now we have to build upon those things this fall."

*—John Majors

mores John Ryan and Ken Ferguson were the only two quarterbacks who participated in spring drills and, to date, they will be joined by just one freshman — Pedro Gonzalez of Miami. Ryan and Ferguson enter fall camp virtually deadlocked in the quarterback derby. Ferguson won the battle of statistics in the Blue-Gold game, completing four of seven passes for 86 yards and leading the Gold team to a 22-14 victory. Ryan completed three of eight passes for 24 yards.

"We have no definite timetable for naming a starting quarterback," said Majors. "This is probably the fewest quarterbacks I've ever been associated with on a football team in the last 12 years. We need competition and depth at this critical position. Both John and Ken worked hard during the spring, but they have much to learn in handling game pressure and running a football team."

The offensive line suffered the most losses from the 1992 unit, which was one of the team's strengths a year ago. Adding to the problem was the fact that two of the line's projected starters — center/guard Lawson Mollica and tackle Rick Cardinali — missed all of spring drills while nursing injuries suffered last year. Mollica has the most experience after starting for parts of two seasons at guard, but he will probably move to the center for the 1993 season. Cardinali saw limited playing time last year, mostly on special teams.

The only other returning letterman on the interior line is tackle Man Bloom, who served as Reuben Brown's backup last year and played sporadically except for special team duty. The starting guards heading into fall camp are both converted defensive players. Jared Miller, a redshirt freshman, was formerly an inside linebacker, while fifth-year senior Dave Kristolic played defensive nose tackle last year, even though he has played on both sides of the ball throughout his Pitt career.

Majors believes tight end was one of the most productive positions during the spring. Returning letterman Raymond Belvin, a redshirt sophomore who had some sparkling moments last year, solidified his hold on the starting spot. He was the recipient of the spring offensive Ed Conway Award, presented annually to the most improved offensive and defensive players. Another redshirt sophomore, Chad Skrocki, who missed last season after seriously severing his hand in an off-season domestic accident, is seemingly ready to contribute. Redshirt freshman Luther Wormack switched from linebacker during the spring and showed signs he could be a contributor with continued development.

Running back is perhaps the deepest and most experienced position on the team. Curtis Martin had a strong spring and is the consensus starter at tailback entering fall camp. Other backs who will challenge for playing time are juniors Tim Colicchio, Pitt's leading rusher last year with 743 yards on 139 carries; Chad Dukes and senior Jermaine Williams. Dion Alexander, a talented redshirt freshman who has been slowed by back problems, might jump into the picture if he is healthy. Junior Vince Williams, a fullback, could also figure into the mix at tailback, in addition to sophomore walk-on Ches Fulton, who made an impression this spring.

Senior walk-on Maurice Washington is the projected starter at fullback. Sophomore Lyron Brooks, who came on strongly toward the end of the 1992 season, has the size (6-2, 230) and strength to be a prototype fullback. He showed improvement in the spring and will challenge for the starting position. Junior Vince Williams, who missed spring drills while recuperating from Achilles heel surgery, will compete at fullback and tailback.

Four lettermen return at wide receiver, giving the Panthers both experience and depth. Preseason all-star candidate Dietrich Jalls had an excellent spring and appears poised for an outstanding season. Redshirt freshman Curtis Anderson, one of the fastest players on the team, gives Pitt two potential long-ball threats. Fifth-year senior Junior Green, who missed half the 1992 season after separating his shoulder, will move from split end to flanker, where he will battle redshirt juniors Chad Askew and Billy Davis for the starting position.

"We want to be able to allow ourselves to have several options offensively, but to make sure that we're able to take advantage of what the defense gives us," said Charles Coe, run offense coordinator/running backs coach. "The players' attitude has been good. Anytime you have a new coaching staff bringing in a new philosophy, you're anxious to see how (the players) react, and ours have been very good about that. Coach Majors emphasizes discipline, and the players know he wants things done a certain way. They responded to that and respected that."

DEFENSE

The defense returns 22 lettermen — excluding Dave Kristolic, a defensive tackle last year who moved to the offense — and seven starters. But only two of those players, safety Doug Whaley and linebacker Charles Williams, have more than two years of experience. Moreover the defense, especially the defensive line, was the hardest hit with injuries of any area during spring drills. Two projected starters—tackles Matt Hosilyk and defensive end Dell Seagraves—missed a significant part of spring drills with injuries.

As a result of the installation of the 4-3 defensive scheme, several players will be moved to the defensive line as down ends. Included in the group are former linebackers Seagraves, Zaiti Moody and Tony Reardon. Former tight end Keith Spencer was also switched to defensive end.

Defensive line progress was slowed considerably in the spring, Majors said. "We needed to make much progress on technique execution and being fundamentally sound, but injuries tore us to pieces here more than any other place on the team."

Redshirt junior defensive tackle Tom Barndt emerged from spring drills as the rock-solid leader of the defense, and was one of three defensive Conway Award recipients. His work ethic, aggressiveness, and determination, according to Majors, served as a model for the rest of the unit. After bulking up to 280 pounds in the offseason, Barndt could be poised for an all-star season at right tackle in 1993. Redshirt freshman Mike Mohring will provide depth. At left tackle, the projected starter is Hosilyk, while Tim Robbins, a redshirt freshman, and senior walk-on Todd Ryan, a converted linebacker, will provide backup.

Redshirt sophomore Mike Halapin returns at right end after winning the starting assignment midway through the 1992 season. He will be challenged by two converted players—Reardon and Spencer. At left end, the projected starter is Halapin, who, at the end of spring, is the projected starter. He was impressive last year in his first active season and showed flashes of brilliance that could make him a key defensive performer for the next three seasons. Seagraves will be challenged by Moody.

Seven letterman return at the linebacker positions, and with the reduction of a linebacker spot due to the schematic change to the 4-3, there should be plenty of competition. Sophomore Jason Chevis emerged as the starting middle linebacker with an excellent spring. Chevis, one of three defensive Conway Award recipients, began asserting his abilities toward the end of last season and his improvement continued through the spring. Not even minor offseason knee surgery slowed his progress. Senior Charles Williams, Pitt's leading tackler the past two years, will provide depth and experience at middle linebacker. Redshirt sophomore Jimmy Morrison, a part-time starter last year, will move back to middle linebacker after experimenting at defensive line during the spring, and will also battle for playing time. Moving to weakside outside linebacker is Tamulity, who earned Big East Rookie of the Year honors as an inside linebacker in 1991. Others vying for playing time at weakside linebacker are Hayes Clark, a former inside linebacker who started six games in place of Tamulity last year, and Keith Little, a special teams regular the past three years with little experience from scrimmage.

At strongside linebacker, junior Gerald Simpson is expected to be the starter once again, after a solid year at outside linebacker last season. Simpson also had a good spring, virtually assuring himself of a starting spot. Another candidate at strongside linebacker is junior George Mohring, brother of defensive lineman Mike Mohring.

Seven letterman return in the defensive secondary. The secondary features a pair of talented sophomores—speedy left cornerback Jay Jones and strong safety David Sumner. Jones and Sumner, both projected starters, made two of their biggest plays of the season last year against Syracuse at the Carrier Dome. Jones, one of three defensive Ed Conway Award recipients, caught Qadry Ismail from behind on a kickoff return to save a touchdown, while Sumner thwarted another Syracuse TD with an acrobatic interception in the end zone. Two-year letterman Chris Hupko, a redshirt junior who started three games at cornerback last year, will move to the starting free safety spot where he will be backed up by veteran senior Doug Whaley, a three-year letterman. Redshirt freshman Jim Williams will be the backup at strong safety. Former walk-on Maurice Williams, a senior and special teams standout, is the projected backup at left cornerback. At right corner, the competition will be between redshirt sophomore Anthony Dorsalt, a converted safety, and junior Demek Parker, who started all 12 games at right cornerback.

"Our primary objective is to play good, fundamentally sound defense," said Driesbach. "We want to keep our opponent out of the end zone, and give the football back to our offense in good field position. We won't be a gambling defense, but we don't want to be a sit-back-on-our-heels type of defense. We want to be an attacking defense with our front people, and we'll be looking to eliminate the big plays."

"One of the early challenges we face going into camp is getting our people lined up in the right positions," Driesbach added. "We had a lot of problems with that in the spring because we had so many injuries. But, we're going to do whatever we can to make playing football fun around here."

SPECIAL TEAMS

Majors has placed great emphasis on special teams, but with the loss of both starting kickers from last season, attempting to improve the special teams will not be easy. Senior punter Kevin Leon will help solve the punting problems. After redshirting last season with a knee injury, Leon was impressive early before suffering an unrelated sprained left (non-kicking) knee injury the first day of spring drills. One of the Big East's top punters in 1991 before being ruled ineligible by the NCAA due to a transfer rule, Leon is expected to recover completely from the injury and should regain his form as one of the top punters in the Big East.

Placekicking is a concern for Majors. With Ted D'Alessandro, Pitt's only scholarship placekicker, recuperating from offseason knee surgery, placekicking duties in the spring were handled by two walk-ons—Chris Beiculfina and Ryan Friedberg. D'Alessandro, who saw a little game action as a kickoff specialist in his freshman year, could also challenge for the starting job if he recovers from his knee injury. Help could also come from the freshman class.

Returning as Pitt's long snapper is Lou Casanova, a walk-on transfer from Kentucky. Other candidates for the long snapping duties are Mario Masucci, Tony Reardon, and Randie Nulph.

Jones, Jeffs and Curtis Anderson are the leading candidates for Pitt's kickoff and punt returns. Hupko could also contribute as a

COACHING STAFF

BACK TO THE FUTURE

Head Coach John Majors

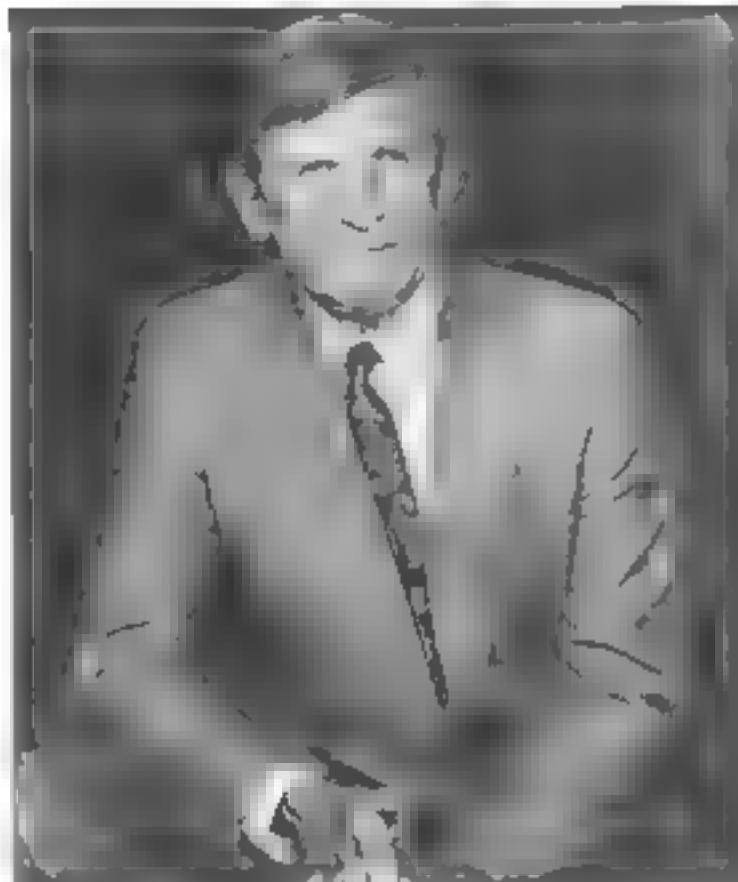

Twenty years ago John Majors was named the 26th football coach at the University of Pittsburgh. A young, fiery Majors was charged with the reviving of a Pitt football program that had fallen on hard times.

On Dec. 11, 1992 Pitt Athletic Director Oval Jaynes summoned Majors once again to a similar task: revitalizing Pitt's tradition-rich football program into the national power it once was in the mid-1970s and early 80s, when the Panthers made nine consecutive postseason bowl appearances. The slogan that greeted Majors' return: "Back to the Future."

Inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1988 for his outstanding achievements as a player at Tennessee, Majors succeeds Paul Hackett, who resigned on Nov. 25, 1992, after coaching the Panthers for three seasons.

The appointment of John Majors as football coach is consistent with our desire to be competitive on the field and to maintain consistent performances in the classroom," said Pitt Chancellor J. Dennis O'Connor. "Our objective always is to create an environment in which student athletes have a legitimate opportunity to succeed in their academic options as well as their athletic pursuits. John Majors' illustrious coaching career illustrates an unwavering commitment to this same philosophy."

Twenty years ago John Majors was the perfect choice to become the head coach at the University of Pittsburgh," said

"Twenty years ago John Majors was the perfect choice to become the head coach at the University of Pittsburgh. He is again the perfect choice."

—Oval Jaynes
Pitt Athletic Director

Pitt Athletic Director Oval Jaynes as he announced Majors' hiring. "Today, he is again the perfect choice."

John obviously had remarkable success during his four-year stay at Pitt in the 1970s, highlighted by winning a national championship in 1976. The successes he experienced on the field during his time here, combined with the enthusiasm and vision he brought to the program, were directly responsible for a football renaissance here at Pitt.

His success continued at Tennessee, where his teams won SEC championships and were regular bowl participants. Equally important, John's players continued to be successful in the classroom as well as on the field. Over the last 16 years, Tennessee has had 53 all-conference football players, and also a total of 52 Academic All-star players.

"I have deep personal respect for John and long-standing professional admiration for his abilities as a football coach and administrator. His many accomplishments during a quarter-century of coaching at the Division I-A level have certainly earned him status as one of the finest college coaches of our time, and we are very fortunate to welcome John back to Pitt.

Majors has made a career of rebuilding football programs—Iowa State in 1968, Pitt in 1973, and his alma mater Tennessee in 1978.

It was at Pitt, though, where he attained his greatest coaching achievement. Inheriting a Pitt squad that had finished 1-10 in 1972, Majors surrounded himself with a young, hard-working and talented coaching staff, and in just four seasons, transformed Pitt's stagnant football program into the 1976 national champion. His first prize recruit—Tony Dorsett—had a spectacular career at Pitt, which included being honored with college football's most treasured award—the Heisman Trophy.

"Coming back to coach at Pitt is one of the most exciting challenges a person could have," Majors said. "Our work is cut out for us, and to achieve success, it will take a concerted effort from everyone who loves Pitt."

"A high priority for the players in our program will be teaching them the fundamentals of the game, which are so important to maintain a winning edge.

"Certainly it is our objective to improve the win-loss record, and with the imposing schedule that will face us next year, our work is cut out for us. Another important objective of our staff will be the creation of an environment that will allow our players to thrive in the academic community.

Finally, I am thrilled to be coming back to one of the most exciting cities in the world. A city is made up by its people, and the people of Pittsburgh are special to me. I am eagerly looking forward to seeing old friends and making new acquaintances who will help make the coming years exciting ones for Pitt football.

In a profession where longevity is elusive, Majors recently completed his 25th season as a college football head coach. He has posted an overall record of 173-105-10 (.600), including a 116-62-8 mark (.645) at Tennessee (1977-92), a 33-13-1 mark at Pitt (1973-76), and a 24-30-1 record at Iowa State (1968-72). A total of 17 of his 25 teams have earned bowl invitations, including 11 of his last 12 teams, the 1992 Tennessee squad defeated Boston College in the Hall of Fame Bowl on January 1. His overall record in bowl games is 9-7.

Majors first arrived at Pitt 20 years ago after a five-year stint as head coach at Iowa State, during which he had established himself as one of the bright young minds in college football. He immediately began recruiting the blue-chip talent that would provide the impetus for Pitt's national championship in 1976 and the Panthers' dominance of Eastern football into the early 1980s.

Dorsett, whose son Anthony is currently a sophomore defensive back at Pitt, was the plum of Majors' first recruiting class, which also included defensive linemen Al Romano, Gary Burley, and Don Parrish, as well as quarterback Robert Haygood, tight end Jim Corbett, linebackers Cecil Johnson and Amie Weatherington, and placekicker Carson Long. Over the next several years Majors continued to recruit exceptional players who would play key roles in Pitt's drive toward a national championship, including quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, runningback Elliott Walker, defensive lineman Randy Holloway, and wide receiver Gordon Jones.

Majors wasted little time beginning the turnaround at Pitt. In 1973, he guided Pitt to a winning record (6-5-1) for the first time in 11 years. The Panthers also landed a berth in the Fiesta Bowl, Pitt's first bowl appearance in 17 years. That startling turnaround brought Pitt and its new coach extensive national attention, and earned Majors Coach of the Year honors by both the Football Writers Association and the Walter Camp Foundation.

Majors followed up with a second consecutive winning season (7-4) in 1974. In addition, the Panthers made an appearance on national television for the first time since 1963, and Pitt's home attendance was twice the 1972 average.

In 1975, Pitt's remarkable upturn continued as the Panthers clawed their way to an 8-4 season that included a victory over Kansas in the Sun Bowl and the No. 15 final national ranking in the Associated Press.

Then came the magical 1976 season. A dominating, nationally televised 31-10 victory at Notre Dame in Pitt's opener set the tone for the season. The Panthers were undefeated the rest of the way, closing their 11-game season record with a 24-7 win over Penn State. Pitt ranked number one in every poll in the country, was invited to the Sugar Bowl, where the Panthers crushed Georgia 31-10 to win the national championship.

Majors again was named coach of the year, while Dorsett was selected 18 NCAA weeks as the nation's top player at Pitt, securing the career passing yardage record of 6,442, won the Hersman Trophy.

Johnny was a communicator and he related well to the players," said Dorsett, remembering back to his days at Pitt.

Coach Majors and Jackie Sherrill recruited me, but I also did my own homework. I knew Majors and his staff had a reputation of turning programs around and that was important to me. Now that he is back, I couldn't be any happier. And know he will get this program back to where we can all be proud of. It may take a couple years but I know he will turn things around.

Another key player in the championship season was quarterback Matt Cavanaugh, now an assistant coach under his former head coach.

"Two qualities of Coach Majors that have always impressed me are his great communications and motivational abilities," said Cavanaugh, who returned to Pitt in January as the Panthers' tight ends coach. "He came to Pittsburgh and was able to inspire a football team, and rally a University community and an entire City around him to help build a championship football team. I still see those same remarkable qualities in him from my perspective as an assistant coach."

With his ability to relate to young men and with a quarter of a century of coaching success to his credit, I believe any prospective student-athlete would be impressed with Coach Majors and would value an opportunity to play for Coach Majors, while representing the University of Pittsburgh.

After the 1976 season, Majors returned to Tennessee as the vols head coach, and before long he was shaping the Vols into an SEC power. Tennessee won SEC Championships in 1985, 1989, and 1990, and high rankings in the coaches and writers polls have characterized Tennessee football throughout the last decade. During most of Majors' tenure at Tennessee the Vols have been a perennial bowl team, earning invitations to the Garden State Peach (twice), Florida Citrus, Sun, Sugar (twice), Liberty, Cotton, Fiesta, and Hall of Fame bowls during the past 2 years.

Majors' professional stature was reflected when he served as president of the American Football Coaches Association in 1990, a year in which Tennessee's SEC title gave the school its first back-to-back conference championships since the Vols won three in a row from 1938 through 1940.

A member of perhaps the most famous football family in Tennessee, John Majors was destined to carry on family tradition. His father, the late Shirley Majors, was a successful high school coach for 14 years in Tennessee and later served for 21 years as the head coach at Sewanee (University of the South), compiling a record of 93-74-5. He was selected as the Football Writers Association Small College Coach of the Year in 1973, the same year his son, John, received the Division I coach of the year honor at Pitt. Two of John's brothers, Bill and Bobby, were great stars at Tennessee. Another brother, Joe, starred at Florida State, while a fourth brother, Larry, played for his father at Sewanee.

But John was the biggest football star in the Majors family. He played for his father at Huntland High School, where he scored an incredible 565 points. As an All-America tailback at Tennessee, he led the Vols to a 10-0 record in 1956, a No. 2 ranking, and a trip to the Sugar Bowl. That year he was named as JPI's Back of the Year and finished second to Notre Dame's Paul Hornung in the Heisman Trophy balloting. Majors was twice named MVP in the Southeastern Conference, and in 1975 was named to the 25-year All-SEC Team (1950-74). He is a charter

"Steve Bird is an outstanding young man with excellent qualifications to coach college football," said Majors. "Steve comes from an excellent family background of athletes and competitors. Matt Cavanaugh
Tight Ends
Pittsburgh '78

Searching for a young, highly motivated offensive coach, Coach John Majors selected the man who led his 1976 Pitt team to the collegiate national championship -- Matt Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh returns to his alma mater to coach the tight ends after spending 14 years in the National Football League, where he was a member of two Super Bowl winners -- the San Francisco 49ers in 1984 and the New York Giants in 1990. In all, Cavanaugh played for four NFL teams -- the New England Patriots (1978-8, 1984-85), the 49ers (1983-84) and the Philadelphia Eagles (1981-82) -- before finishing his career with the world champion New York Giants in 1980-81.

"I am very excited about Matt Cavanaugh joining our staff as the tight ends coach at the University of Pittsburgh," Majors said. "Matt brings loyalty and tradition, integrity, versatility and intelligence to our program. I have never had a player whom I have had more respect for during my entire coaching career."

Cavanaugh's Pitt career was highlighted by the 1976 championship season and his performance in the 1977 Sugar Bowl, a 27-3 victory over Georgia in which he was named MVP.

A three-year starter for the Panthers, Cavanaugh's overall record as Pitt's starting quarterback was 15-4-1. He was named All-American his senior season in 1977. The Youngstown, Ohio native finished his career at Pitt with 3,378 yards passing, which currently ranks him sixth on Pitt's all-time passing yardage list.

Alex Kramer
Administrative Assistant

A glance at his resume indicates this is the 16th year for Alex Kramer as the administrative assistant in the Pitt football program, but to those who know him well, tales of Kramer's ties to Pitt tell a story which dates back to the late 1930s. Kramer, an avid historian of Pitt football and Sir Winston Churchill, was the Panthers' student football manager from 1948-51, rooming with future Pro Football Hall of Famer Joe Schmidt. After graduating from Pitt, he enlisted in the Air Force, where he remained for four years before becoming a teacher and administrator in the Moon Area School District. He left his position as director of curriculum at Moon to return to Pitt in 1978.

Kramer's assignments include making the team's travel arrangements, serving as the football program's liaison with other offices and departments within the university, and expanding the services that Pitt football players provide to the community. He continues to lead a group that he organized in 1978 called the John Pruitt Children's Hospital Volunteer Group, which is comprised of Pitt football players who make regularly scheduled bedside visits to young patients.

His long-standing ties to Pitt football prove valuable when Pitt stages its annual football alumni weekend, a series of activities which brings back to the Pitt campus many former Panther players. In addition to Pitt football, Kramer has a keen interest in animal and environmental issues.

Charles Williams
SR LB/6-3/260
Philadelphia, PA

One of Pitt's most underrated players the past two seasons, Williams is in his final season for the Panthers in 1993. Has been one of Pitt's most productive players the past two years, leading the Panthers in tackles both seasons. Became only the third Pitt player since 1912 to lead the team in tackles for two straight years. Will have an opportunity to become the first Pitt player since defensive stalwart were kept in 1972 to lead the team in tackles for three consecutive years. Is a very intense player who has the intangibles and qualities to add leadership to the defense. Has all the intangibles to be an excellent college linebacker — aggressiveness, athleticism, and intelligence. With Pitt's move to a 4-3 defensive alignment, Williams' role in the defense will be changed. Will change from middle linebacker to the second-team middle linebacker heading into fall. Williams has orchestrated the defense on the field the last two years, calling the defensive formations and making all the adjustments at the line of scrimmage. Is a very physical player and a reliable tackler, possesses excellent strength, can bench press 355 pounds, among the 10 best on the team. Is a product of the same prep school, Valley Forge Military Academy, as former Panther great Chris Delmar. 1992 Produced another solid season for the Panthers, led the team in tackles for the second straight year with 78 total tackles, including 48 solo stops, tying Lex Perkins for a team high in that category. Recorded double-digit tackling totals in three games — West Virginia (11), Minnesota (10) and Hawaii (10) — all 10 of his tackles in the Hawaii game were unassisted. Also registered four tackles for losses, forced two fumbles and recovered a fumble. Collected the third interception of his career in front of his hometown fans in Philadelphia against Temple. 1991 In his first year as a starter, Williams led the team with 92 total tackles, just eight stops shy of becoming Pitt's first 100-tackle player. He tied Jerry Jisucki's 1988 season in 29 tackles, had two interceptions, one each in the Syracuse and Rhode Island games. Led Pitt on the team with nine tackles for losses, for career 34-55. 1992 Game-By-Game Review

Pitt 51 Kent 10

September 5, 1992

PITTSBURGH Pitt won its sixth consecutive season-opener with a decisive 51-10 victory against Kent at Pitt Stadium.

The Panthers operated their two-back offense at high efficiency, compiling 426 total yards in offense (158 rushing and 270 passing) while committing just one turnover.

Pitt actually had to come from behind to claim the victory, spotting the Golden Flashes a 3-0 lead on Kent's initial offensive series. Mike Benzy's 28-yard field goal was set up by Troy Robinson's 64-yard burst on Kent's first play from scrimmage. Pitt cornerback Vernon Lewis made the touchdown-saving tackle at Pitt's 18-yard line. The defense rebounded and allowed Kent across the 50-yard line just three more times the rest of the game, once on Kent's opening drive of the second half that culminated in the Golden Flashes' only TD of the contest.

Quarterback Alex van Pelt completed 11 of 17 passes for 187 yards and three touchdowns. Other offensive standouts for the Panthers were tailback Curtis Martin, who ran for 80 yards on 16 carries and scored four TDs (3 rushing and 1 receiving), tailback Jermaine Williams, who had a 77-yard TD reception, tying Pitt's third-longest TD pass play in school history, and split end Dorian Wells, who caught three passes for 99 yards.

Offensively, the Panthers were led by inside linebackers Tom Tumulty and Hayes Clark, who finished with a team-high eight tackles apiece. Tumulty left the game midway through the third quarter with a season-ending chest injury from pectoral muscle and was replaced by Clark, who responded with the best performance yet of his Pitt career and, in addition to his tackles, recovered a fumble and deflected a pass. Cornerback Vernon Lewis registered Pitt's first interception of the season, and special teams standout Cliff Moncrief blocked a punt, setting up Pitt's last touchdown.

September 12, 1992

PITTSBURGH Pitt could not overcome the running of Adrian Murrell (141 yards, 1 TD) and the passing of Jake Keichner (9 of 12 for 158 yards and 2 TDs), and the Panthers were defeated by the Mountaineers, 44-6 at Pitt Stadium.

Pitt's defeat marked the fifth time in the last six games between Pitt and WVU that the visiting team has been victorious. The only exception was a 31-31 tie in 1989 at West Virginia, in which Pitt rallied from a 31-0 deficit with fewer than 10 minutes remaining.

The Mountaineers raced to an early lead, scoring 14 consecutive points in less than two minutes at the end of the first quarter and early in the second. After halfback Adrian Murrell gave WVU a 8-0 lead on a four-yard run with 43 seconds remaining in the first period, Pitt quarterback Alex van Pelt threw his first interception of the season, and WVU cornerback Kwame Smith returned it 70 yards for another Mountaineer TD. WVU added nine more points in the second quarter and led at halftime, 23-0.

Pitt's only score of the day came at the 11:27 mark of the third quarter when Van Pelt connected with tight end Rob Coone on a 18-yard touchdown pass.

Sophomore tailback Curtis Martin was one of the few bright spots for the Panthers, gaining 107 yards on 17 carries, the third 100-yard rushing performance of his Pitt career. Van Pelt, challenging Dan Marino's all-time school passing yardage record, threw for 193 yards on 18 of 31 passing, 31 yards shy of the record. Van Pelt did eclipse Marino's total offense record of 8,320 (1978-82) for a total of 8,443.

The Pitt defense was led by junior inside linebacker Charles Williams, who registered a team-high 11 tackles (8 solo stops), and outside linebacker Gerald Simpson, who recorded a career-high 10 tackles. Sophomore cornerback Demick Parker collected his first interception at Pitt on WVU's first offensive series of the second half.

Rutgers 21 Pitt 16

September 17, 1992

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Pitt's dominance of Rutgers came to an end in an ESPN nationally televised Thursday night game in which the Scarlet Knights defeated the Panthers, 21-16, for their first game.

Senior quarterback Alex Van Pelt however broke Dan Marino's career school passing yardage record (8,597 yards) and raised his career passing yardage total to 8,962 yards. Spill and Dietrich-Jells set a new Pitt single-game receiving yardage mark with 164 yards. Jells's 91-yard TD reception from Van Pelt also established a new record for Pitt's longest pass play from scrimmage.

The Scarlet Knights, playing RPI at Rutgers Stadium for the first time, opened the scoring on a 33-yard touchdown pass from Brian Foray to Jim Guertano with 13:33 left in the first half.

Pitt, which compiled 558 yards in total offense, cut its deficit to 7-3 on the initial series of the second half when:

- 44-yard field goal Rutgers increased its margin.
- Pitt responded with a long score of its own, when Van Pelt connected on the 91-yard TD pass play. After Rutgers extended its lead to 21-3, Van Pelt once again rallied Pitt to within a touchdown with a four-yard TD pass to flanker Chris Bouyer.

Faced with a second-and-4 from its own 16, Rutgers virtually sealed the victory when Piley rambled 60 yards to the Piv 24. Van Pelt, who completed 36 of 55 passes (one completion short of tying a school single-game record), finished with 395 yards passing, the second-highest single-game passing total in Pitt history, at the time, behind John Congemi's 446 yards (versus ~~44~~ 444) in 1986.

The Pitt defense registered three sacks, two by Jeff Evers. Free safety Lex Perkins led the Panthers with seven tackles, five solo stops.

PITTSBURGH — Pitt snapped a two-game losing streak and produced its second-largest scoring output of the season with a 41-33 victory against Minnesota at Pitt Stadium.

The Panthers compiled a season-high 596 yards in total offense in their second straight game in which they accumulated more than Pitt quarterback Alex Van Pelt, who finished with 364 yards and three TDs on 22-of-33 passing, amassed 255 yards passing in the first half and 178 of 23 passes with 2 TDs and no interceptions.

During his first start of the season, sophomore tailback Tim Colicchio had his first 100-yard rushing game with 125 yards on 23 carries, including a 27-yard TD run. It was Colicchio's first touch-down at Pitt and the longest run of his Pitt career.

Defensively, the Panthers allowed 446 yards in total offense, but kept the Redskins from scoring when they had to. Free safety Anthony Johnson registered a pivotal sack — the first of his career — in the fourth quarter to thwart a Minnesota drive with the score 34-9 inside linebacker Charles Williams led the team with 10

GAME 5

Maryland 47 Pitt 34

October 3, 1992

COLLEGE PARK Md.— Pitt completed more than 500 yards in total offense for the third straight game but could not contain Maryland's explosive run-and-shoot offense as the Terrapins earned their first victory of the season by defeating Pitt 47-34 at Maryland's Byrd Stadium.

Quarterback Alex van Pelt had his third straight 300-yard passing game and threw for a career-high four TD passes. Senior Chris Bouyer also had a sterling performance, catching 11 passes for 128 yards, both career marks. Another offensive highlight was tailback Tim Collicchio's second career 100-yard game as he gained a career-high 144 yards in 22 carries on 14 carries in the first half.

But while Pitt rolled up 552 yards in offense, the run-and-shoot attack amassed 557 yards in offense.

Pitt (2-3) appeared to have taken control of the game after taking the lead after their first two possessions. Kentucky answered with an offensive surge of its own, scoring three touchdowns and building a 17-10 lead. Pitt's Sean Conley brought a 30-yard punt with 1:00 left in the half, reducing Maryland's lead to 17-13 at halftime.

Maryland opened the second half with its third TD of the game in the first quarter, 14-13. Pitt answered with two straight touchdowns, including one failed and one successful two-point conversion, to regain the lead at 27-24. But the Pitt defense could not hold, and Maryland scored 23 consecutive points to secure its first victory of the season.

Pitt closed the scoring when Van Pelt connected with Bouyer on a 12-yard TD pass play for the 47-34 final.

GAME 6

Notre Dame 52 Pitt 21

October 10, 1992

PITTSBURGH For the second time in its history, Pitt could not contain a high-powered Notre Dame running attack and the Fighting Irish racked up 521 yards — and 521 yards in total offense — en route to a 52-21 victory in a nationally televised game at Pitt Stadium.

The Panthers began the game improving their record at early Notre Dame, but the Irish defense held them to 16 yards on 16 plays in the first quarter. The Irish took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter, but on the very next offensive series, Notre Dame answered with a 74-yard touchdown drive for a 7-3 lead.

After a game-long 48-yard field goal by Conley sliced Pitt's lead to 7-6, with 14 seconds left in the first quarter, Notre Dame's offense erupted, scoring 21 consecutive points for a 28-6 halftime lead.

Pitt began the second-half scoring when quarterback Alex van Pelt finished with 246 yards on 23 of 48 passing, connected with Keith Jeffs on a 5-yard TD pass. Sophomore quarterback-holder John Ryan's ensuing two-point conversion run trimmed N.D.'s lead to 28-14 and seemingly put Pitt back in contention. Notre Dame, though, scored on four of its final five possessions of the game to offense, who tied flanker Chris Bouyer with a team-high six catches, exploded his streak of consecutive TD receptions to four games. Bouyer suffered a neck injury and had to leave the game.

Tests of the injury revealed an unrelated spinal abnormality, which could force Bouyer to end his career. Hampered by an early hip injury, Collicchio had his string of 100-yard rushing games ended after two, but he finished with a team-high 81 yards in 15 carries.

Defensive inside linebacker Jason Chavis led Pitt with eight tackles, including six solo stops.

Notre Dame's offense was led by running back Eric Decker, who had 100 yards on 22 carries and scored two touchdowns.

1992 Game-By-Game Review

GAME 11

Penn State 57 Pitt 13
November 21, 1992

STATE COLLEGE Pa. — In the final meeting between rivals Pitt and Penn State until '93, Pitt was unable to contain an explosive running attack that propelled the Nittany Lions to a 57-13 victory in front of 91,000, rain-soaked fans at Beaver Stadium.

While Penn State compiled 534 yards in offense, Pitt's nationally-ranked offense never seemed to get untracked and the Panthers could not recover from an early 14-0 deficit. After Penn State built a 14-0 advantage, Pitt (3-8) managed to cut the Penn State lead to 14-8 in the second quarter when quarterback Alex Van Pelt marched the team 71 yards and connected with tight end Rob Coons on a 1-yard scoring pass play. But Penn State blocks point attempt and returned it for a two-point defensive. Instead of Pitt trailing by seven points, the Panthers faced a point deficit.

The Panthers added their second score of the game with 9:11 remaining in the contest, when sophomore backup quarterback Alex Van Pelt threw a 10-yard pass to tight end Rob Coons for a 14-8 lead.

One bright spot for the Panthers was the performance of Curtis Martin, who rushed for 106 yards on 18 carries. With his 14th yards passing, Van Pelt moved ahead of Boston College's Doug Flutie into fourth place on the NCAA's career passing yardage list.

Defensively, the Panthers were led by free safety Lex Perkins who registered 1 tackle (0 solos) and deflected two passes. Defensive end Mike Halapou and outside linebacker Gerald S. finished with five solo tackles apiece while cornerback Lewis recorded a team-high three pass deflections.

GAME 12

Hawaii 36 Pitt 23
December 5, 1992

HONOLULU — Pitt, led by interim Head Coach Sal Sunseri, concluded its season with one of its best.

was not enough to defeat 23rd-ranked Hawaii, which rallied in the fourth quarter for a 35-23 victory at Aloha Stadium in Honolulu.

The Panthers began the game impressively, scoring on their initial offensive series. But Pitt could not contain Hawaii's multi-dimensional running attack that generated 303 yards in rushing. Hawaii opened the scoring when tailback Curtis Martin, who rushed for 128 yards and two touchdowns, scored on a 5-yard burst at the 9:26 mark of the first quarter. The key play in the drive was a 20-yard pass from quarterback Alex Van Pelt to wide receiver Dietrich Jells on a third-and-11 situation. After a 34-yard field goal by Pitt senior placekicker Sean Conley, Hawaii scored its first points of the game on a 56-yard punt return by Derrick Branch. Martin gave Pitt a 7-37 (remaining in the half) on a nifty 28-yard burst. The half ended with Pitt leading 20-14.

Hawaii took control of the game in the fourth quarter, scoring 22 unanswered points to secure the victory. Van Pelt completed 26 of 31 passes for 319 yards. He finished as Pitt's all-time leading passer and third on the NCAA's career passing (10,913 yards) and total offense (10,812 yards) lists. Jells caught nine passes for 146 yards.

Defensively, the Panthers were led by junior linebacker Charles Lewis who recorded 10 solo tackles, including two for losses. Senior David Sumner had another strong performance, registering eight tackles, including seven solo stops.

HISTORY

BACK TO THE
FUTURE

A Legacy of Success

A simple accounting of the University of Pittsburgh's football accomplishments during its first 103 years would lead to an unmistakable conclusion: Pitt has a football heritage rich with achievement and glory.

Its nine national championships rank Pitt sixth in NCAA annals. The football program has produced 81 first-team All-Americans, and ranks sixth among Division

A schools with 39 consensus All-Americans. Only 14 schools have more victories than Pitt's 563. Pitt players have won the Heisman Trophy, the Maxwell Award, the Walter Camp Award, the Outland Trophy, and the Lombardi Trophy.

Sixteen men associated with Pitt football—players and coaches alike—have been elected to the College Football Hall of Fame, and more are on the way. There have been approximately 200 former Panthers who have played in the National Football League, while 11 men have coached in the league, including Dave Wannstedt, the new head coach of the Chicago Bears who replaced another Pitt man—Mike Ditka.

Any listing of Pitt's godron immortals is a roll call of football greatness. The names: Joe Thompson, Pop Warner, Jack Sutherland, Hube Wagner, Bob Peck, Tommy Davies, George McLaren, Joe Skladany, Herb Stein, Charles Hartwig, Gibby Welch, Aye Denzell, Marshall Goldberg, Bill Daddio, Joe Schmidt, Mike Ditka, Tony Dorsett, Hugh Green, Mark May, Russ Grimm, Dan Marino, Jimbo Covert, Bill Frelie, and Chris Doleman hardly scratch the surface.

But Pitt football is about more than its great players, its victories, its awards, and its championships. It's also about courage and character and unified commitment—11 from first-team All-Americans to fourth-team reserves in undefeated seasons and in years when the victory total could be counted on one finger.

While Jack Sutherland was coaching at Pitt, he once wrote an article for The Saturday Evening Post, in which he said:

"I honestly do not want to have my teams undefeated, untied, and unscored upon. Our schedules are deliberately arranged so that we won't win all of our games. Our idea is to play each fall the toughest set of opponents we can assemble on one schedule and then sock it to as many of them as we can."

But at some point in the season, we want to have to face the situation of seeing whether we have what it takes to rebound after a defeat, and give perhaps one that beat us the week before the whole works. We want to demonstrate to the players and to the spectators that tomorrow is another day, and that one or two defeats are only temporary setbacks which can be canceled at the next opportunity.

Anyone who understood Sutherland would know he truly meant that. He believed more than anything in developing character.

The strong character associated with Pitt football through the decades, both in good times and in bad, perhaps can be traced to the motto of the city of Pittsburgh and the surrounding Western Pennsylvania region:

It is an area that grew up around the steel industry, a city that used to be lit up 24 hours a day with the night sky glowing from furnaces that burned so fiercely they were sometimes described as "hell on earth."

The close-knit ethnic neighborhoods in the cities and towns of the region spawned a strong sense of family and commitment. The relentless work ethic learned in the mills was passed along from generation-to-generation. Pride and inner toughness came from the smoky, gritty, and persevering in the face of long odds.

Some of these things surely have played a role in the tradition of Pitt football, permeating the players and coaches so profoundly that the football program itself has reflected the region's own strength, power, and purpose.

And like the surrounding region, which has been forced to weather the death of the steel industry and other hard times, so too has Pitt football endured difficult periods.

But also like Pittsburgh, which has been reborn into a thriving city teeming with new opportunities, so has Pitt football always bounced back from its periods of drought. It has to do with mental tenacity and the will to win.

There is a drive, a desire to succeed that is instilled in virtually every player that comes out of the University of Pittsburgh, says Kansas City Chiefs Head Coach Marty Schottenheimer, an outstanding linebacker at Pitt in the early 1950s. "I've been around a lot of players, both as a player myself and as a coach, and haven't seen that same trait from the players from any other school."

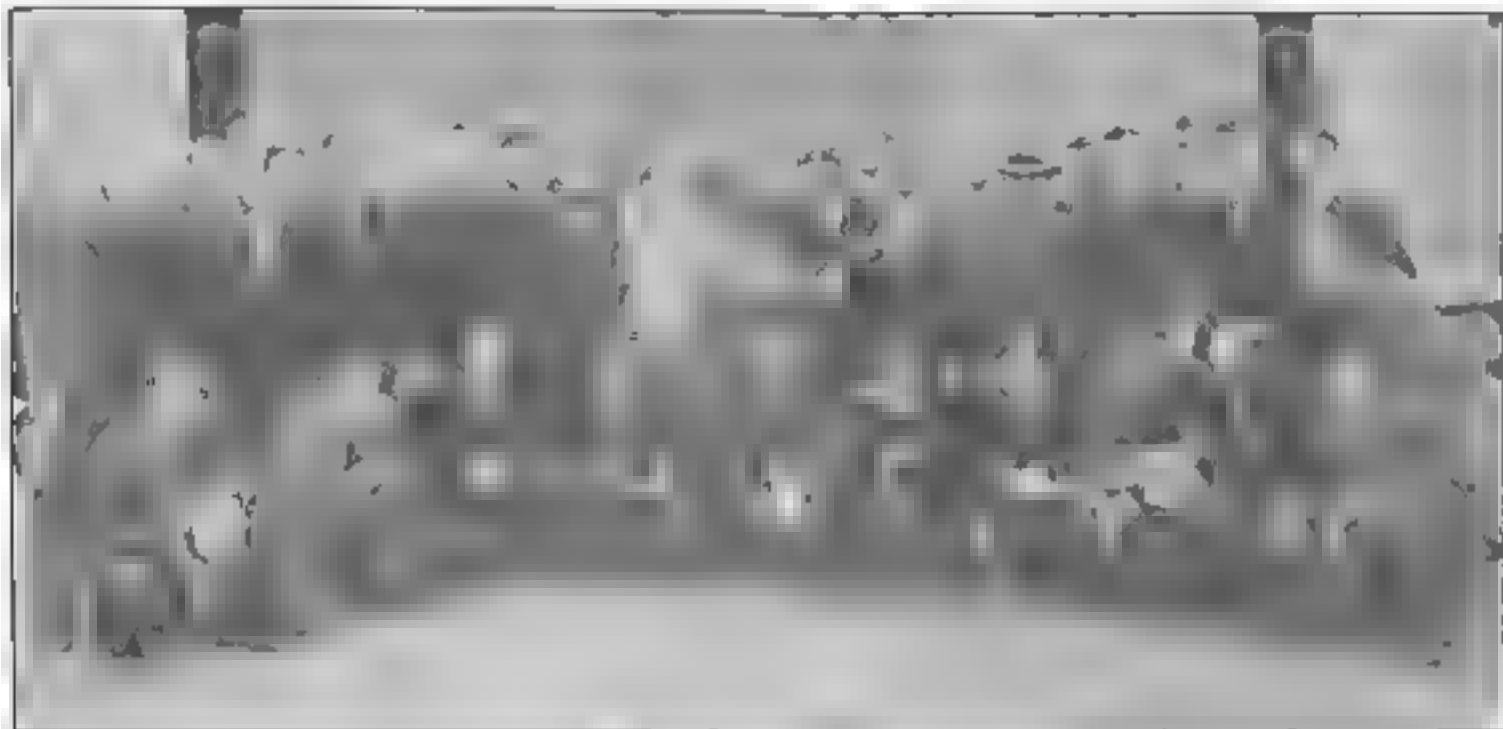

I can't exactly put my finger on why it's there, because I'm sure every team and coach attempts to teach a desire to be the best, as well as instilling an attitude of mental toughness. But it seems the players coming out of Pitt all get those qualities, ones that help not only on the football field, but in most other challenging professions of life.

More than the victories and the honors, the bonds that are established in quest to succeed sum up more than anything else the essence of Pitt football.

This past December, the University's administration reached back to a thrilling period of its football history when it named John Majors its 31st head football coach. Majors, who spent the past 16 seasons at the University of Tennessee, directed Pitt's modern football renaissance when he inherited a program in 1973 that had been 1-10 the previous season. Majors coached Pitt to four consecutive winning seasons, including a national championship performance in 1976.

As evidenced by Majors' first stay at Pitt, the Panther program has been to the mountaintop more than once, both the climb and the view can be breathtaking. As Majors leads the program into a new era of competition—Pitt's third season in the Big East Football Conference, he too has set the sights high for Pitt to return "Back To The Future."

Origins Of Pitt Football

In 1889 a spindly, 130-pound lad named Burt Smyers graduated from Bucknell Academy and went on to Western University of Pennsylvania. That autumn, along with a senior named John D. Scott, Smyers gathered a small, curious group of students together into the first organized football team at the University.

Only three members of what Smyers later called "our money crew" had ever even seen a football contest before enlisting their services. Smyers installed himself as the quarterback. Scott, also a baseball pitcher, became a center. Frank Rhea and John McGrew were the guards. Harry Calvert and A.B. McGrew were the tackles. Calvert's brother, George, was an end along with E.C. Shater. An opera singer, Joe Griggs, and Billy Gill were the halfbacks. The fullback was John Hansen.

That group played a game against Shadyside Academy, which it lost. "We had a long way to go before we could tear down any goalposts," Smyers recalled years later.

Pat Hartrich and Albert Marshall replaced the right end for the first true season of play in 1890, and George Steele took Hansen's place at fullback.

"We started out with one football each fall and used it in every game and every practice," Smyers said. "We furnished our own uniforms and paid our own traveling expenses."

Our equipment really was thrown together. In my own case, I had no money to spend recklessly, so I wrote home to mother and told her I needed a pair of football pants. She made them by cutting off the legs of an old grey pair and putting rubber elastic bands at the knees.

The stockings were contributed by my sister. The girls wore heavier stockings than they do now. Football players also wore jackets, and I tried to describe in a letter to my mother that they were made of canvas. But the only canvas she had was from some old oat sacks around the barn. So she made me a vest of that with laces from an old corset, and I was all ready to play.

The uniforms were primitive, and it was a different game as well.

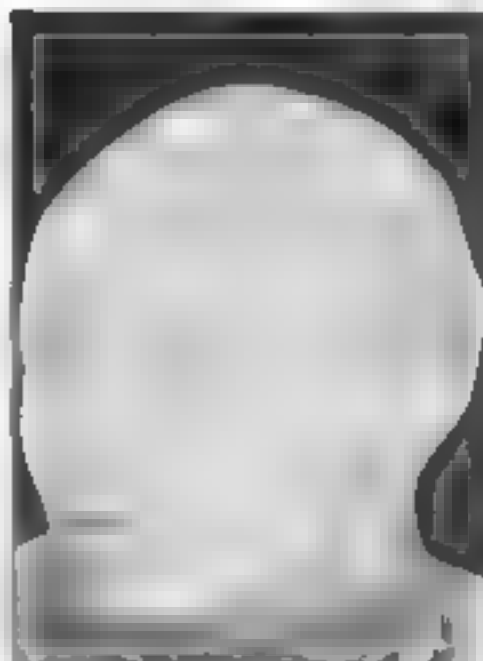

Those were days of the flying wedge and every five-yard advance meant a first down. Smyers said, "We had four plays and our line buck, punt and a lateral pass. We played our games at Expo Park and crowds ranged from 50 to 100 people."

Many games in the early years involved high schools and athletic clubs. In fact, only 27 of the school's 56 games in the 1890s were intercollegiate.

The inaugural season's first game, on October 11, 1890, actually was something of a fluke. When a game scheduled between the Shadyside Academy and Allegheny Athletic Association was cancelled because

-Burt Smyers

Colonel Joe Thompson was a team captain, later a successful coach, and a World War hero.

Shadyside failed to show, Western's team was summoned to Exposition Park. Allegheny AA won the game, 38-0.

Western also began the list of many long-standing rivalries in 1890 when it lost, 32-0, to Washington and Jefferson. The game between Western and Washington and Jefferson the following year was a rough affair, with game accounts describing Harry Cahoon's head being sold open, and Smyers having his nose broken. The year also added insult to injury: W & J 40, WUP 6.

The Allegheny season ended a grim year and what many considered a disgraceful season ended after the 1895 season.

Joe Trees, a senior at Brown, acknowledged Pitt's first intercollegiate win in 1895.

We added a few more games with Indiana (a loss), Pennsylvania State University (Pennsylvania), Smyers recalled, and Trees was the captain of the Penn State team. Jackson, who was the first player at Pitt, had the idea of starting a team. Pitt had no idea of what it didn't have any more.

I arranged for the various classes at Pitt to take care of him. One class paid his tuition, another his room and board, and another his travel expenses.

forgot his alma mater, and maintained close ties with the University until his death in 1943. "Call on Joe" became a byword at Pitt, and he always came through for his alma mater. If the band wanted to make a trip to a big game but lacked funds, he would be there with his checkbook. He donated $100,000 to Trees Gymnasium, deeded the practice field to the school, gave $75,000 to the building of Alumni Hall, and bought $200,000 worth of stadium bonds.

After finishing 2-5 in 1891, WUP posted its first winning record in 1892, ending with a 4-2 mark. The following season Western hired Anson F. Harbold as its first true coach, but the team slipped to a 1-4 record.

Dr. Fred Robinson, a former Penn State player, took over as head coach in 1893 and guided the team to a 5-2-1 record, and followed that up the next year with a 3-1-1 mark.

Dr. M. Roy Jackson succeeded Robinson in 1900 and led WUP to a 5-4 record. The Wilbur D. Hockensmith coached the team in 1901, posting a 7-2-1 record.

Hockensmith also played in the late 1890s. The following are some of his recollections from the period around the turn of the century.

In the fall of 1897, about 16 boys enrolled in the Western University of Pennsylvania who had saved for the year their money for or for preparatory schools. A student in the School of Journalism, Thomas Trenchard, who had graduated from Princeton, coached the varsity team. He had been quite famous as a star and the work was with players in fact as "Digger" Trenchard. The varsity those days, was composed mostly of seniors and graduate students, only upperclassmen and postgraduates were considered physically strong enough to play football as it was played at that time.

The freshmen entering in 1897 organized a class team and began to play teams whenever they could be scheduled. Each player purchased his own nose guards, shin guards, shoes and moleskin vests, which were then in vogue, and all contributed to a fund to buy a football for the first game.

We played some of our games in the late 1890s at Recreational Park, but in 1900 we obtained the Schenley Oval for our games, introducing football to the Schenley district for the first time. The games were free to all who wished to attend.

The 1904 campaign began a string of eight consecutive winning seasons, including a 10-0 record under Arthur St. Louis. That year and a 0-2 mark in 1905, a 6-4 mark under E. F. Wingard in 1906, and 8-2 under scholarly John Moorhead, a Yale product in 1907.

In 1908, Joe Thompson, a member of the undefeated 1904 squad and the captain of the 1905 team, took over as head coach.

The Pop Warner Era

Glenn Scobey "Pop" Warner coached at Pitt from 1915-23, and under his command the Panthers evolved into a national power. His teams won 59-2-4 (.787) and were recognized as national champions in 1915-9-6 (unanimously), and 1918 (unanimously).

Some of the greatest players in Pitt history including Bob Peck, George McLaren, Tommy Davies, Herb Stein, Andy Hastings, Tiny Thornhill, H.C. "Doc" Carlson, Leonard Hilly, Dale Seis, Jack Sack, Pud Seidel, and Jock Sutherland, played under Warner.

Warner, a stalwart, 200-pound guard at Cornell in the early 1890s, when Pitt's own football program was finding its legs, began his coaching career at Georgia in 1895. He returned to Cornell in 1897 and two years later took charge at the government school for Indians at Carlisle, where he was football coach, athletic director, baseball, track, and boxing coach through 1914 except for 1904, 1905, and 1906, when he was back at Cornell.

He left Pitt in 1924 for Stanford, where he remained through 1932. He returned East to coach Temple from 1933-38, after which he retired from active coaching. His nine-year record at Pitt was 59-12-4, and his overall career mark was 313-108-32.

Few coaches in the history of college football have influenced their players—and their peers—so significantly as Warner.

"He was a contemplative and deliberate mind," wrote Allison Danzig in The History of American Football. "It was behind the scenes, in the quiet of his study, that the genius of Warner, a tinkerer whose hobby was to take apart worn-out automobile engines and put them together again, found its expression. There he worked out the stratagems, and devised the departures from orthodox football that won him recognition as one of the two most fertile and original minds football has known, the other's being Amos Alonzo Stagg."

Warner was preeminently a creator, and his name is secure as one of the trail-blazers who led football out of the wilderness of massed, close-order push-and-pull play into the more open game of speed, deception, and brains. His was one of the more intelligent and visionary minds that helped bring about the evolution of football from a mere physical test of unimaginative brute strength to a contest of skill in which the college youth was given the chance to show that there was something underneath his long hair besides a skull.

Coch. Pop Warner's Pitt teams (1915-23) produced the first dominant era of Panther football excellence.

There can be no questioning that Warner ranks among the greatest coaches football has known. It is not only in the imagination, perception, and originality he brought to bear in moving football from the amateur to the professional level, but in the way he shaped the game.

His teams were known for their use of the wing and the double wing, inventions which sprang from his imagination. From those formations he used a bow-kicking set of spins, reverses, double reverses, fake reverses, runs from fake passes, and passes from fake runs.

Red Smith wrote in the New York Herald Tribune in 1954, "Pop Warner was a gruff old gent, kind and forthright and obstinate and honest. He was one of the few truly original minds in football coaching, and that made him a big man in his world. There is, however, a more important measure of a football coach than his contribution to and influence on the technique of the game. The quality of the man himself is revealed in the attitude of his former players after they have outgrown the awe and hero worship of undergraduate days. After the boys who played for him had become men, Pop remained a hero to them."

That was certainly true of his Pitt players. Doc Carlson, an All-America and under Warner and for 31 years a Hall of Fame basketball coach at Pitt, wrote of Warner in a letter dated March, 1953. "Over the years Glenn S. Warner proved himself to be most ingenious in football and in many of the harassing details of everyday life. From the repair of a newspaperman's eyeglasses to the invention of player equipment and the origin and development of football plays, Warner filled in many details to make a wonderful experience of association with him. Personality, originality and the promotion of kindly human relationships are only part of the great trademarks of Glenn Scobey Warner. You couldn't tell any of his boys here was a finer gentleman, or a greater coach."

Jock Sutherland: A Football Man

The legacy of John Bain "Jock" Sutherland is perhaps best summed up this way: He was a football man.

Sutherland, a native of Scotland who according to legend, played in the first football game he ever saw, is Pitt football's all-time crown jewel. Both as an All-America guard for the Panthers during a brilliant four-year playing career under Pop Warner, and later as a Hall of Fame coach whose dominating teams were knighted as national champions five times, he set impeccable standards of excellence at Pitt.

Sutherland became a larger-than-life figure not only at Pitt but throughout the college football world.

When he died unexpectedly of a brain tumor in 1946, the city of Pittsburgh and the sporting world mourned the loss of one of the truly great men in sports.

"Jock, above all, was a leader," said the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette in an editorial upon his death. "This impressed you at once in first meeting him. Character, restraint, and sincerity were written in his bearing."

"There is nothing anybody can say about the passing of Jock Sutherland that isn't 'fair' in the heart of every man and woman in Pittsburgh. In any list of the district's assets, he was close to the top."

Johnny Sutherland was one of seven children born to Mary Burns Sutherland, a descendant of the poet, Robert Burns. When his father, Archibald, suffered a fatal internal rupture trying to save the life of a fellow worker pinned under a fallen girder, Mary Sutherland sent young Johnny to America to join relatives here and escape from a life of certain poverty in Scotland.

When he arrived in America, the 16-year-old Sutherland was determined to educate himself and get ahead. After working his way through several prep schools, including one job as a night policeman in the Pittsburgh suburb of Sewickley, he entered Pitt's School of Dentistry in 1914.

During his early years in America, Sutherland focused his sturdy 6-4, 210-pound frame on soccer, the game most popular in his native Scotland. But when Joe Duff, the Pitt football coach in 1914, got one look at this tall, strapping Scot, he convinced him to try his hand at football.

By the second game of the season, "Jock," as he came to be known, became a starting guard. He flourished at the game. Like a bridge player who understands the system behind the play, Sutherland sensed the reasons for the moves on the gridiron, and he developed into one of the greatest guards in Pitt history. He became an All-American under Pop Warner, who succeeded Duff as head coach in 1915.

During his four years as a player, Sutherland only tasted defeat once; the Panthers were defeated only one time in four seasons, and were recognized as national champions in 1915 and 1916. Sutherland also had a perfect record as both a player and a coach against Penn State. The year he graduated, a victory as a player would carry over into his brilliant coaching career.

After a tour in the Army, during which he coached several camp teams, he accepted an offer in 1919 to become the head coach at Lafayette College. He spent five years at Lafayette, producing an eastern championship team in 1921 and defeating Pitt twice in a row.

When Pop Warner left Pitt for Stanford in 1924, Sutherland returned to his alma mater as head coach, where he remained through the 1938 season.

There was a touch of grandeur to Sutherland. Tall, strong, ruggedly handsome, with a formidable jaw and piercing blue eyes, "Jock Sutherland," wrote Look Magazine's Tim Conane, "had a strength of mind, body and purpose as unshakable and craggy as the hills enveloping his native Lochiel Angus."

He was a commanding, almost majestic figure, an austere man of few words with a reserve not even his players could break down. To those who did not know him, he could seem forbidding. As a result, he earned a few unflattering nicknames over the years, including "The Great Stone Face" and the sour Scot.

But in his relaxed hours, wrote New York sports writer Joe Williams, "which were not infrequent, there could not have been a more unobtainable man. His soft, pleasing voice rolled with the thistle of his native Scotland. He had wit and wisdom and a certain grace."

The Dream Backfield

The glory years of Pitt under Jock Sutherland in the '90s featured tremendous backfield play, climaxing in 1938 with the marvelous 'Dream Backfield.'

The formation of the 'Dream Backfield' which was intact as a starting unit for that one season only—1938—evolved this way:

In '935 Frank Patrick was a triple-threat: fullback and shared the job with fellow sophomore Bill Stapulis. They were interchangeable for the next three years. The right halfback was junior Bobby LaRue, the climax man in Pitt's dreaded deep reverse and, according to one scribe, "the nearest most elusive runner Jock Sutherland ever had."

In '938 a pair of flashy sophomore halfbacks joined Patrick, Stapulis and LaRue in the Panther backfield: Marshall Goldberg, a compact sophomore five-brander from Elkins, West Virginia, and Harold "Curly" Stebbins, a rangy all-purpose back from Williamsport, Pennsylvania. John Chickemeo, another young sophomore from Warren, Ohio, also entered the picture that year as an understudy quarterback behind John Michalosien.

Goldberg—who was named All-America at left halfback—Stebbins, Stapulis and Patrick were joined by a new sophomore phenom in 1937, Dick Cassiano. With such a deep and gifted stable of running backs and with the clever Michalosien and Chickemeo sharing the quarterbacking job, Sutherland had an embarrassment of backfield riches. In fact, although the quartet of Goldberg, Stebbins, Cassiano, and Chickemeo would be dubbed the "Dream Backfield" the following season and would earn more fame as a unit, Pitt's 1937 backfield wrecking crew was much deeper at every position and helped the Panthers win a national championship.

In 1938, with Patrick, Stapulis, and Michalosien gone, Sutherland felt he had to make room in the starting backfield for Cassiano, the brilliant junior from Albany, New York. Since "Dandy Dick" was a natural left halfback and because Sutherland wanted him on the field, he asked Goldberg to switch to fullback for his senior season.

The unselfish Goldberg, who had led Pitt in rushing in '936 (886 yards) and in 1937 (698 yards), readily complied, relinquishing his starting left halfback post to the talented fuzzy-haired comet, Cassiano. With Chickemeo operating as the No. 1 quarterback, and Stebbins entrenched at right halfback, the Dream Backfield was in place.

The dazzling quane became the pride of the Sutherland. Scythed earning kudos not only as the best backfield in the country, but as one of the best ever to play the game.

Fordham Coach Jimmy Crowley, one of the legendary Four Horsemen, Notre Dame claimed the Dream Backfield was "the greatest backfield that the college game has ever known" and an excruciation of 1924.

Crowley, who helped Notre Dame with fellow Four Horsemen Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden and Don Miller, said the 1938 backfield with the addition of Marshall Goldberg, Curly Stebbins, John Chickemeo and Dick Cassiano.

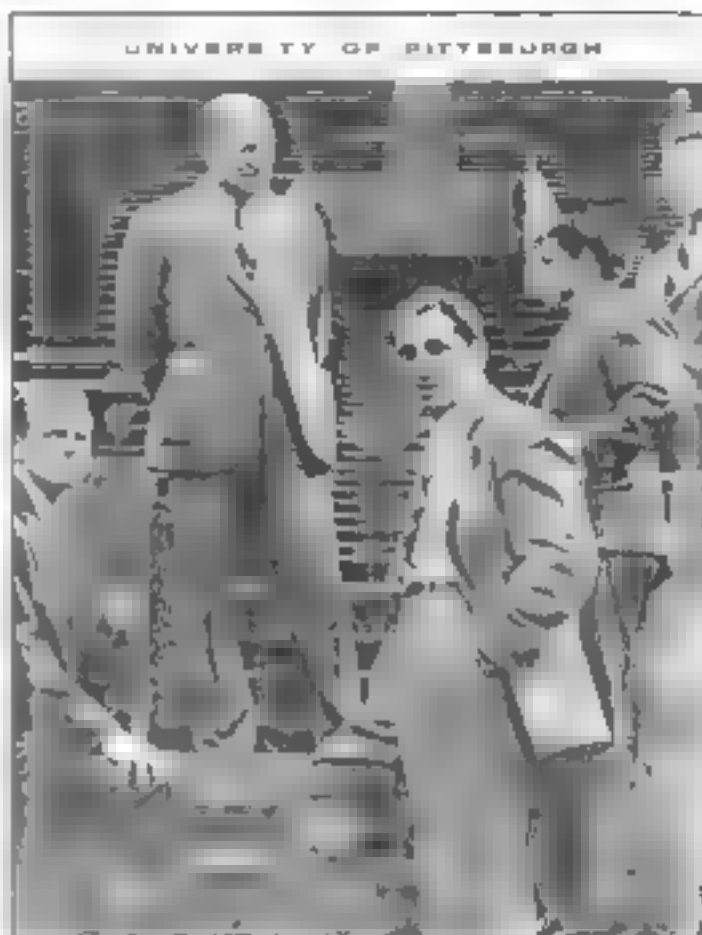

The 1938 backfield was the best of 1924 were at least as Goldberg,

Stebbins, Cassiano, and Chickemeo said. Crowley after Pitt's 21-13 victory over Crowley's Fordham team in 1938. "We had superior passing and more skillful kicking by Layden. But we lacked the physical advantages—and consequently the power—of the four phenomenal Panthers."

"It is extremely doubtful that any backfield ever matched theirs," he said. "I know," wrote New York sportswriter Harry Grayson. "All are in high school and can't be in either direction."

Goldberg, who weighs 184 pounds and stands 5 feet 10", would be the best guard or end on the Pitt varsity were he not a back. Goldberg is the hardest runner of the four and is of good speed, although he and Chickemeo are not as rapid as Curly Stebbins and Cassiano is the speediest of the quartet.

Strictly a team man, Goldberg sacrificed the running position of left halfback this fall to block, and his teammates love him for it. He kicks well enough and throws a short pass with deadly accuracy.

Chickemeo, who calls the plays, is the ideal blocker. "I would rather throw a good one than score a touchdown. It doesn't pay an end to fool Chick, for the next time the Panther quarterback will swipe him right up into the bleacher seats. Chick, who scales 55 pounds and is 6 feet 1 inch tall, kicks well enough and throws a nice, long pass."

Stebbins weighs 192 pounds and stands 5'11". He runs like a thief and can pass uncommonly well when called upon.

Cassiano, the smallest of the lot at 72 pounds and standing 5'10", has blazing speed, drive, and bounce, and while he plays the key position of left halfback, he has a fullback's instinct of picking up that extra yard.

A Different Proving Ground

The 1940s and early 1950s were not a glorious era of success on the field for Pitt.

The University suffered the same kinds of problems as many other "big-time" schools during the war years: decline in attendance, funding shortages, transportation problems, game cancellations, the discontinuance of athletic scholarships, and reductions in recruiting.

Some of the more fortunate colleges escaped the dragnet of trouble by using service trainees to play football," wrote Jack Henry in Hail To Pitt, "but Pitt was among those forced to survive with 17-year-old freshmen and 4-F's. An added blow was that, when the Pearl Harbor tragedy occurred, Pitt had not yet recovered from the malady known as the post-Sutherland blues.

After nearly a quarter century of coaching stability in the hands of Sutherland and before him, Pop Warner, the head coaching position turned into a revolving door.

During the 6 years from 1939-1954—the years between the reigns of Sutherland and John Michelosen—seven coaches came and went: Charlie Bowser (1939-1942), Clark Shaughnessy (1943-1946), Wes Fesler (1946), Walt Milligan (1947-1949), Len Casanova (1950), Tom Hamilton (1951), and Red Dawson (1952-54).

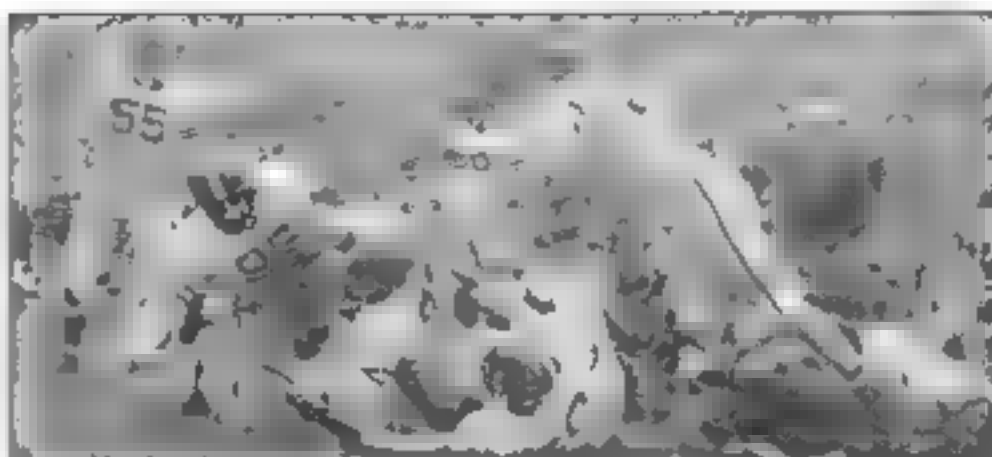

The Panthers' record during that 16-year stretch was 57-84-3. There were only four winning seasons, no bowl games, plenty of frustration. (By comparison, Pitt's record in the previous 16 years was 114-24-12, with five national championships, five Rose Bowl invitations, All-America players, and the respect of the college football world.)

Yet if the 40s and early '50s represented a comparatively bleak period on the field in Pitt's football history, it also was a different kind of proving ground for the gallant young men who strove against long odds to try to reclaim Pitt's place among football's elite.

They weren't always successful, but according to Nick Bolkovac, a talented tackle and Pitt's captain in 1950, there were some different rewards for the players on those teams.

"The men of the Sutherland era, those of the Johnny Michelosen and Johnny Majors teams, and the players of the modern era have their own pockets of camaraderie," says Bolkovac, whose 23-yard interception return for a touchdown helped Pitt beat Penn State 7-0 to hand the Nittany Lions their only loss of the 1949 season. "Their accomplishments in each of their periods form a basis of understanding which bind them together."

"But those of us in the 40s suffered with the limited support the University gave us. We survived the politics, but more importantly we understood that mental and physical toughness were prerequisites for survival. We know that individual fortitude and pride were required to overcome adversity and to enable us to stand toe-to-toe and to do battle with the best the country had to offer.

We know how the deck was stacked, but it did not deter us. Adversity was a companion we accepted as a teacher. It taught us ~~we know who we were and what we were~~. We were Pitt!

It was that determination to defeat adversity that enabled us to garner many unexpected victories and many near victories. And I believe what gave us our strength to persevere, what gave us the determination to stand up to the best, was the Pitt spirit and tradition. That tradition may have been tarnished slightly during our era, but it was never trampled upon. In many ways, it may have been Pitt's finest hour.

Pitt certainly also had its share of stars during that era. Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones was a wonderful running back in the early 1940s. He almost single-handedly helped Pitt upset a great Fordham team in 1941 with a performance that ranks among Pitt's greatest!

"It was the most amazing individual performance I have ever seen," said Fordham Head Coach Jimmy Crowley of Jones's effort, which included 106 yards rushing, re-turning an interception 30 yards for a touchdown, pinpoint passing, and continually coming through in the clutch when the Panthers needed him.

Special Delivery Jones was special on defense too. In 1941 he set Pitt records that still stand for most interception yardage in one game (132 vs. Nebraska) and in a season (224).

There were other standouts: Ralph Fife, an All-America guard in 1941; Jimmy Joe Robinson, Pitt's first black player and a game-breaking running back in the mid-1940s; Bill McPeak, an outstanding end and Pitt's 1948 captain; Lou "Blumbo" Cecconi, who led Pitt in rushing in 1947, 1948, and 1949 and captained the Panthers as a senior in '49; Carl DePasqua, a top back and premier punter in the late 1940s; halfback Billy Reynolds, whose 748 yards rushing in 1952 was the highest figure in between Marshall Goldberg's 896 yards in '38 and Tony Dorsett's 1,686 in 1973; quarterback Bob Bestwick, who became the first Pitt quarterback to pass for more than 1,000 yards (1,165, in 1951); Bernie Barkouskie, an All-America guard in the late 1940s; Edred Kraemer, an All-America tackle in 1952; and Joe Schmidt, the Panthers' All-America linebacker who played from 1950-52 and later coached the Detroit Lions.

John Paruck was a standout defensive lineman who lettered from 1953-55.

Joe Schmidt: Football At The Boiling Point

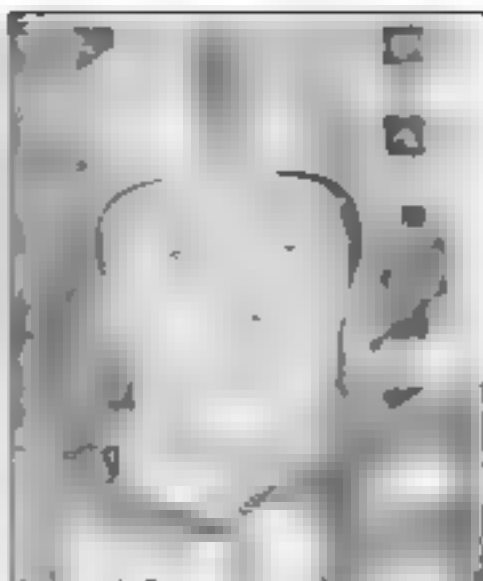

Although Pitt's success as a team was handicapped during Joe Schmidt's career by the fact that in his four years he played for four different head coaches, he established himself—both at Pitt and later during a sterling career with the Detroit Lions—as one of the finest linebackers the game has known.

At Pitt, Joe began as a fullback and a guard, but as a sophomore Len Casanova switched him to linebacker, where he became an All-American. At Pitt he displayed the skills of anticipation, split second defensive instincts, and deadly tackling that made him an eight-time All-Pro with the Lions.

Schmidt was destined to be a football player from an early age.

Joe began playing rough, tough football against full-grown men on the sandlots of Western Pennsylvania when he was only 14," wrote Myron Cope in The Saturday Evening Post. "Joe was a jack-of-the-St. Clair Veterans, a team that was otherwise made up of men who had served in World War II. He was a skinny boy then, weighing 75 pounds, but he didn't owe a whisker of his chin. When the St. Clair Veterans visited the Western State campus during the vacation on visits, the kids at the school about his age to get inside the prison walls.

the Panthers that helped persuade Joe to attend Pitt.

His college career was rife with injuries. As a freshman he broke two ribs. In his sophomore season he broke his wrist in several places and separated his shoulder in one fall. As a junior he badly sprained his knee in the preseason. As a senior in 1952, he tore knee cartilage in the opening game against Iowa, and then came back two weeks later against Notre Dame, in which he received a concussion and hemorrhage that put him in the hospital for 10 days.

But when he was on the field, he was a force to behold.

He played the game at the boiling point. Head down, he would charge straight into thundering linemen. They would meet him head-on, with a crashing of helmets and a thudding of shoulder pads. Schmidt would split the would-be blockers like wooden soldiers and blast a ball carrier into the next county.

He personally—sometimes almost single-handedly—led Pitt to some tremendous victories during his career—a 21-7 victory over Miami in 1951, a 13-7 win over Penn State in 1951, a 21-14 win over Ohio State in 1952, and the memorable 1952 victory against Notre Dame, when Schmidt's propulsive address to his teammates (along with his 60-yard return of an interception) helped spur the underdog Panthers to a 22-19 decision against the Fighting Irish in South Bend.

Following his playing career with Detroit in the NFL, which earned him a spot in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Schmidt served bravely as an assistant coach for the Lions, and then as head coach from 1967-1972, leading Detroit to its only playoff appearance in the 1970s.

Lou Cimarrilla was a dependable, quality running back for the Panthers from '53-'54.

Michelosen To The Rescue

In the 24-year stretch from 1915-1938, Pitt had only two head coaches. But in the 6-year period from 1939-1954, no fewer than eight men were summoned to the helm. Charlie Bowser, a former Pitt center in the early 1920s, replaced Jock Sutherland in 1939, but stepped aside three years later after back-to-back 3-6 logs in '41 and '42.

Amid tremendous fanfare, Clark Shaughnessy took over for Bowser. Shaughnessy, who had guided Stanford to a perfect season in 1940 and later achieved fame as an offensive genius in the NFL, stayed only three years at Pitt, compiling a 10-1 record.

Was Fessler, a combination All-American end and matinee idol from Ohio State, gave it a shot for one season, 1946, but returned to coach his alma mater in 1947. A former Pitt guard, Mike Milligan, stepped up from an assistant's post to replace Fessler. After a rocky beginning, he had a pair of satisfactory 6-3 seasons in 1948 and 1949, then left in a dispute over his contract longevity.

Len Casanova of Santa Clara fame took over in 1950. From the beginning, his wife yearned to return to the west coast, and when Pittsburgh received a record snowfall in 1950 (until last March's blizzard), her pleading picked up momentum. A 1-8 record and a job offer from Oregon persuaded Casanova to leave.

Tom Hamilton, who had been named athletic director in '49, took over the coaching for one year, then brought in Lowell "Red" Dawson in 1952. When Dawson became ill in '54, Hamilton again handled both jobs.

In 1955, Pitt reached back into its past and selected John Michelosen to breathe renewed vigor into its ailing football program.

Since his playing days as a quarterback and captain under Jock Sutherland in the mid-'30s, Michelosen had become, in some ways, almost an extension of the good Doc.

After Michelosen graduated in 1938, Sutherland made him his backfield coach at Pitt. When Sutherland resigned after the 1938 season, he and Michelosen walked away together. Sutherland became a head coach in the NFL, where Michelosen continued his apprenticeship under his mentor, first with the Brooklyn Dodgers and then with the Pittsburgh Steelers. When Sutherland died unexpectedly in 1948, the Steelers by right of succession promoted the 32-year-old Michelosen to head coach.

Michelosen, a strong, silent figure who embodied much of Sutherland's football philosophy, returned to Pitt in 1952 as the top talent in each year, he was dismissed by the Steelers in 1954 after introducing some of the old Sutherland blocking principles into Pittsburgh's offense as well as spreading his men in a 3-3-3 attack and on defense. Michelosen guided the Panthers to a 3-4 record and a berth in the Sugar Bowl (Pitt's first bowl game in 19 years).

Proving that was no fluke, Pitt finished 7-3-1 the following season, and earned an invitation to the Gator Bowl.

Pitt lost both bowl games, both against Georgia Tech, but the football program was back on firm ground, playing solid fundamentals football with a winning spirit.

When you played under John Michelosen, said Joe Walton of A. A. N. C. and for the Panthers in 1950, "you knew how to block and tackle. We were a strong running football team and we played good, tough defense. He was a master of teaching fundamentals."

In 1955, Pitt had held Syracuse's great Jim Brown to just 36 yards rushing. Penn State's Lenny Moore could manage only 10 yards in 1953. As for the Panthers' first year, The following season, Pitt again stopped Ernie Davis-led number-one-ranked Syracuse 10-0 at Archbold Stadium, and beat Notre Dame 20-14 at South Bend. At the season's third 7-7 tie—against Army—and a closing 14-3 loss to Penn State erased any bowl hopes. Still, only five points separated Pitt from 4-3, 3-1, 9.

winner had to struggle to manage 59 yards.

Slowly but surely," wrote The Owl, Pitt's student yearbook. "Coach Johnny Michelosen's Panthers are showing the nation that a team versed in theatrics and sleight-of-hand magic tricks can play winning football. For the second consecutive year Pitt finished in the upper echelon of football powers—and did it with a relentless, hard-driving ground attack and a sturdy defense."

It was true. That was the way the Panthers played under Michelosen, whose passionate devotion to the game's fundamental elements mirrored that of Sutherland.

They didn't depend upon tricks of any sort in their ball games," continued The Owl. "They used talented material, coached to perfection in the fundamentals, and it worked better than any eye-dazzle that numerous coaches have used at Pitt since Jock Sutherland left in 1938."

Pitt dipped to 4-6 in 1957 before posting three consecutive winning seasons, including a 4-3-3 mark in 1960. The '60 campaign was an odd one that included three identical 7-7 ties and a pair of one-point losses. The Panthers opened the season with an 8-7 loss at UCLA, beat Michigan State 7-7, and then fell 16-14 at Oklahoma. Convincing victories over Miami and West Virginia and another tie against TCU evened the Panthers' record at 2-2-2. Pitt then clipped Ernie Davis-led number-one-ranked Syracuse 10-0 at Archbold Stadium, and beat Notre Dame 20-14 at South Bend. At the season's third 7-7 tie—against Army—and a closing 14-3 loss to Penn State erased any bowl hopes. Still, only five points separated Pitt from 4-3, 3-1, 9.

The freshman class of 1960, which included future All-American Paul Marha, was rich with talent and came of age in 1963 when the Panthers posted a 9-1 record — Pitt's best mark in 25 years — and finished the season ranked third in the country.

But things began to unravel the following season, when Pitt fell to 3-5-2, and Michelosen was fired in the wake of a 3-7 record in 1965.

Nevertheless, Michelosen had restored a measure of respect and stability to the Pitt program. Although it would be nearly a decade more before Pitt would come all the way back under Johnny Majors, Michelosen gave Pitt 11 solid years of wise leadership.

It was surely no accident that Joe Walton, Mike Ditka, and Marty Schottenheimer, who all played under Michelosen, later went on to become head coaches in the NFL.

Back To The Future

In December of 1972, in the wake of a 10 season, Pitt's administration tapped 37 year-old Johnny Majors, who had been the head coach at Iowa State, to try to reverse the Panthers' football fortunes. When Chancellor Wesley W. Posvar left and Director of Athletics Cas Mysinski right announced Majors' hiring at a campus press conference, they had no idea how dramatic—and how sudden—that turnaround would be. Pitt posted a 6-4 regular season record, including impressive wins against Wake Forest, Syracuse, Boston College, Army and Navy, and freshman halfback Tony Dorsett set the college record by winning his ear by rushing for 1,686 yards. Pitt beat Georgia 27-7 in the first game of the Majors Era, as Dorsett rushed for exactly 100 yards. The foundation had been laid, and the catalyst found for near future greatness.

Gary Burley (below) was a junior college transfer from the state of Texas who solidified the defensive line for Pitt during Majors' first two seasons in Pittsburgh. An enthusiastic freshman, Tony Dorsett (right) brought the same instantaneous results to the Pitt offense, rushing for 1,686 yards in his first collegiate season.

Back To The Future

With a winning season in 1973 as a building block, expectations were high for the 1974 Panthers. Pitt opened with road victories at Florida State and at Georgia Tech, setting up an inter-sectional battle against Southern California at Pitt Stadium. The game was billed as a meeting between T.D. East (Dorsett) and T.D. West (USC's Anthony Davis), but the Trojans dominated the Panthers more than the final 61-3 score indicated. Davis gained 348 yards, scoring 3 TDs, Dorsett's 59. Pitt lost at North Carolina the following week, but bounced back to win five straight games, including a exciting 35-24 home decision against Temple. That day, Dorsett missed the key game of his collegiate career because of injury, but for Junior Earl Walker stopped in and ran for 169 yards and four touchdowns. The following week, Pitt came close to scoring its first win against Notre Dame since 1963, but senior quarterback Tom Clement's 145-yard production scored on a short pass with three minutes remaining in the ND up 4-0. Pitt senior quarterback Bob Modera, playing in place of the injured Billy Daniels, led the Panthers on a last-ditch march to the 20, but a flurry of end zone passes fell incomplete, and Pitt would have to wait another year to knock off the Fighting Irish. Sophomore placekicker Clinton Long booted a 52-yard field goal in the third quarter to give Pitt its first second-half tie against the Irish since the 63-61 tie. The Panthers' 1974 Thanksgiving Night game against Penn State in Three Rivers Stadium was Pitt's first home game since 1964, but the Lions put a damper on the crowd by defeating the Panthers 31-0. Dorsett ended the season with 1,004 yards and became Pitt's all-time leading rusher in a year and a half of competition. The 74 Panthers finished with a 7-4 record, but did not receive a bowl invitation, the only time during Majors' 1974 Pittsburgh stay when the Panthers did not go bowling.

Although only a sophomore, Tony Dorsett became Pitt's all-time leading rusher during the 1974 season, when he rushed for 1,004 yards.

Majors greets Billy Daniels, the man who quarterbacked the Panthers during most of the 1973 and 1974 seasons. Pitt's 1974 freshman class included another quarterback, Matt Cavanaugh (inset), who would later play a key role in Pitt's 1976 national championship quest.

A freshman during the 1975 season, wide receiver Gordon Jones seen here making a touchdown catch against West Virginia, brought a dramatic flick to the Pitt passing attack. Jones doubled as one of America's most dangerous punt and kickoff return specialists.

1975 was the "Year of the Veer" for the Panthers. With the explosive line with backfield punch of Tony Dorsett and Eliphaz Walker, sorcerer at left plus speedy snifty junior cornerback Robert Haygood (below), Pitt actually had three winning backs this offense. The Panthers opened the season with a 19-9 victory at Georgia before venturing to Oklahoma where they were defeated by the Sooners, 46-10, the only loss during the Majors Era. Dorsett ran for 146 yards in 12 carries. Pitt rebounded to push back to back's victory at William & Mary and Duke before the offense erupted in a 35-6 victory against Tennessee at the Farris Stadium then in a 42-20 rout of Army at West Point as Dorsett rushed for a school-record 268 yards in loss that broke through a defense that held the balloon burst the following week as heavy spoils for the season, 27 with 17 carries of the Panthers Haygood going down with a knee injury in the game. Sophomore Matt Kavanaugh made his first collegiate start the following week a 38-0 shutout win at Syracuse. The Panthers lost at West Virginia, 17-14, the next week but a tie back at Notre Dame, 34-20, as Dorsett rushed for 304 yards and finished with his best throwback performance at Three Rivers, but Haygood Dorsett in defense again topped 100 yards rushing as Pitt defeated Kansas, 34-14, in Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas, setting the stage for the 1976 season.

Back To The Future

With 8 of the 22 starters returning from the previous year, a few brave souls, none of the pollsters, dared to predict that Pitt would win the 1976 national championship. The 75 Panthers ended the season ranked in both wire service polls, the first since rankings to Pitt since 1963. And with a veteran team led by 10 senior Dorsett, the Panthers appeared to be a better team even divided against each of their scheduled opponents. Pitt was originally scheduled to visit Notre Dame, and, rather than ABC television officials recognizing an intriguing matchup when they saw one, persuaded both schools to open the season on September 13 in South Bend, Pa. A 17-0 victory, highlighted by Dorsett's 81-yard rushing performance, provided the forum from which the Panthers could state their case to the nation and the pollsters. The convincing win was the springboard to a most memorable season, it made a Pitt football annals. Along the way Dorsett became the second (and not only) Heisman Trophy winner, as well as the leading ground gainer in NCAA Division I history. Carson Long became the nation's all-time leading scorer, as he was undefeated for the first time since the 1956 Pirates of Clackamas Submarine. Prior to Pitt's Sugar Bowl victory against Georgia that gave the Panthers their first national championship, Auburn announced its decision to leave Pitt if it ever "the other" returned to the Big Apple match. Tennessee, where he spent a year, left through the 1992 season. On December 1, 1976, the Panthers were ranked 10th in the new poll of 1976.

Middle guard Archie Roman (left) was a three-year starter along Pitt's vastly underrated defensive front. Tony Dorsett met with two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, who came to town as a rookie member of the Cincinnati Bengals. Dorsett himself won college football's most coveted individual performance prize just two months later.

Back To The Future

With his touchdown run at Navy on October 23, 1976, Tony Dorsett became NCAA college football's all-time rushing leader. The Panthers won the game 45-0. During the festive holiday season, before Pitt embarked upon New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl, punter Larry Swider and placekicker Carson Long took time to pose for this personalized Christmas card. During the 1973-76 seasons, the duo handled every kick for the Panthers.

But just for kicks!

Happy Christmas

Quarterback Matt Cavanaugh (above) barely outpointed Dorsett (left) for MVP honors at the Sugar Bowl. It was a storybook finish to Dorsett's career. Cavanaugh would play one more season (1977) for Pitt and was chosen MVP the next year in the Gator Bowl as Pitt beat Clemson.

Tony Dorsett: Heisman Trophy Winner

In 1973, a skinny freshman tailback from Hopewell High School in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, named Tony Dorsett, began a career at Pitt that would lead to a national championship, the Heisman Trophy, and individual acclaim as the greatest running back in the history of college football.

In his fabulous four-year career at Pitt, Dorsett set or tied 18 collegiate rushing records — more than any other player in the history of college football. He established the NCAA's all-time career rushing record with 6,082 yards. (His overall total at Pitt, including his yardage from three bowl games, was 6,528.)

He was the first major college back to compile four 1,000-yard seasons. He became the first freshman consensus All-American since 1944, and was the first sophomore ever named to the Playboy All-American team.

Pitt had finished 1-10 in 1972, the year before Dorsett entered Pitt. As a freshman in 1973, Dorsett burst on the college scene with 101 yards rushing against Georgia in Pitt's opening game. In the 1973 regular season he went on to rush for 1,556 yards, the most ever by a college freshman while recording the first 1,000-yard season in Pitt history. He helped lead Pitt to a 6-5-1 record and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl.

In only his 5th game early in his sophomore season, he broke Marshall Goldberg's Pitt career rushing record of 1,957 yards. He rushed for 1,004 yards as a sophomore.

Tony Dorsett was the first back in the history of college football to run for at least 1,000 yards in four different seasons.

As a junior in 1975, he rushed for 1,544 yards in the regular season, including a memorable 303-yard performance against Notre Dame.

In the final seven games of his senior season, as Pitt was charging toward the national championship, he averaged 215 yards rushing in the game and led to leading the nation in rushing with 1,948 yards.

Having already won the 1975 Heisman, as a senior in 1976 Dorsett became the first Heisman Trophy winner in 1976. He earned 701 of a possible 841 first-place votes for an overall total of 2,357 points, finishing far ahead of second-place Ricky Bell of USC — 1,346 points.

The 5-11, 192-pound Dorsett was a magical optical illusion, blending his 4.3 speed, supernatural acceleration, and Houdini-like escape artistry with open-field cutting and superbly executed fends to escape detection by the naked eye.

As teammate Al Romano once put it, "I hate to practice against him. Trying to tackle him is like trying to catch a fly."

One revealing measure of his greatness occurred late in his senior season against Penn State. At halftime, with the game tied 7-7, Head Coach Johnny Majors decided to switch Dorsett, who despite scoring one touchdown had pretty much been held in check by the Nittany Lions in the first half, from tailback to fullback.

Dorsett wound up rushing for 173 yards and scoring a touchdown in the second half. Pitt coasted to a 24-7 win. Dorsett finished with 224 yards rushing, and his two touchdowns enabled him to break a 30-year-old record set by Glenn Davis of Army. Dorsett scored 356 points in his four seasons, two more than Davis, the 1946 Heisman Trophy winner, had in his four campaigns as a Cadet.

"I didn't think they could run up the gut like the Panthers," said Pitt State Head Coach Joe Paterno. "I don't think I'd see Dorsett at fullback. We just weren't ready for the unbalanced attack."

Asked to describe Dorsett in more detail, Paterno simply said, "How many ways can you say great?"

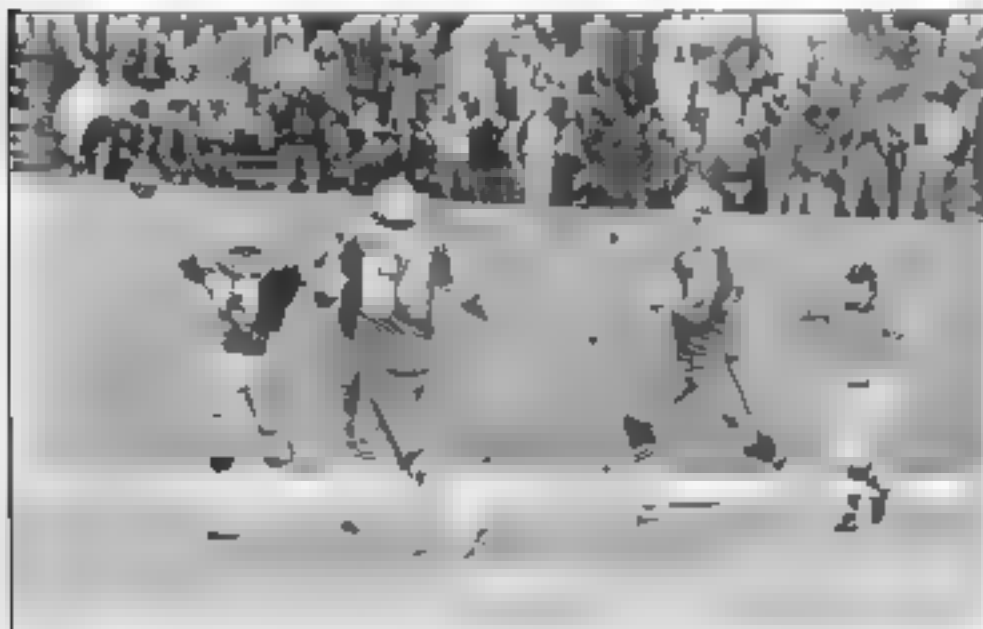

Pitt Head Coach Johnny Majors said it differently.

"I could coach another 100 years and never get the opportunity to coach another back like Dorsett," he said. "I consider it an honor to be his college coach."

With Dorsett setting a Sugar Bowl record by rushing for 202 yards, Pitt went on to crush Georgia, 27-3, to become the first Eastern team since Syracuse in 1959 to win the national championship.

"We really accomplished a miracle," Dorsett said. "I think back to those college days often, and I can't help but smile. I've never had more fun in my life. We were a part of history. We helped save Pitt football."

And 19 years later, Anthony Dorsett Jr., son of Pitt's only Heisman Trophy winner, is a defensive back for the Panthers.

John Hanhauser (64) and George Messich (76) run to congratulate Dorsett following one of his 63 touchdowns.

Sherrill's Panthers: Beasts of the East

The Sporting News in 1987 selected the 25 greatest college football teams of all time. The 1980-81 Pitt teams selected as a tandem entry ranked 21st. Pitt's 1976 national championship squad was tabbed the 7th best team in history.

In The Sporting News tribute to the 1980 and 1981 Panthers, writer Phil Axelrod recalled a poignant moment just prior to the start of the 1980 season. Jackie Merrill was in a mischievous mood when he piloted college football's most overpowering defense against one of its most explosive offenses on that sultry September afternoon in 1980.

A sharp blast from his whistle halted practice and sent players scurrying into a huddle. Smith (nicknamed "The Rat") walked to the 1-yard line, put down a ball and emitted "First-team offense, first-team defense," he barked. Get out there, Hugh Green, Ricky Jackson and the rest of the Panthers' defensive crew stripped off their helmets and sauntered into position. Suddenly, Coach Minnie Mark May and Plaza Center and the offensive line center, for bubble

'I knew it would be a war,' Serrill recalled. 'There was a lot of talent on that field. A lot of people too.'

Marino took the snap from center and spiked it. His right hand planted the ball into the netting floor of 430-pound fullback Randy McMillan. The lines center with a thunderous crash and McMillan lunged toward the goal line grinding his torso through a maze of angled shoulder pads.

The offensive players show their arms skyward to signal a touchdown. The defense slumped in for a down in celebration.

We stuffed it, remembered linehacker Sal Sunser. "No way did they make it. They thought they made it."

After a brief scuffle, Sher's five clarified walters. Obviously, Mo-
Co cranked off to run-ups as the howling defenders sprinted to the soccer room.

That was the final day of the "holocaust" of fall camp. It was also the first and last time She'aril cited his "stream of force" against his starting defense. "Didn't do it again because I didn't want them to hurt each other," he said. They really war after each other.

The collection of alien Pitt had in the early 1980s was almost irreplaceable. And the Axelrod:

The names roll off the tongue: a tawny ol-

What had to do was clog up the middle and bounce people to the outside in the A-Pros.

All five starters in Pitt's defensive front in 1980—Green, Jackson, Boyarsky, Meisner and Neill—went on to become starters in the NFL as rookies, but that 1980 defense had some additional TNT behind it, including Sunseri, a first-team All-American, and safety Carlton Williamson, who would start for the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers in '81.

McMillan and fellow quarterback Rick Troiano, running backs McMillan and Bryan Thomas, and receivers Julius Dawkins and Dwight Collins gave the Panthers great strength at the skill positions. But it was an immensely gifted group in the engine room — the offensive line — coached by Joe Moore — that provided the foundation for success for the Panthers.

There were games when my team won and I say "Mundo, how we doing, what you want to do?" That is cool.

And when wire All-Pro Covert May and Gumm departed for the NFL, along with Sam Fida and Boores, there were some highly talented replacements waiting in the wings, including Jim Sweeney, a great line man at Pitt who has gone on to have an outstanding career as a center for the New York Jets, and Bill Frank, a three-time All-American who was one of the finest college linemen in the history of the game.

...don't know if Pitt or anybody else, we never have that many great athletes at the same time," said Jackie Sherrill of his 11 teams in the early 1980s. "We had a great player at every position on the field, offense and defense. We didn't have a weakness in those years."

Sai Sunseri
Pitt All-American

Hugh Green was an amazing player, arguably, the most devastating defensive end in college history. He started every game out one in his four-year career at Pitt.

Against Notre Dame as a freshman in 1977, he served notice of what was to come by blocking a kickoff, a blocked punt, and two sacks against the eventual national champions.

His mere presence could control an entire game, something the pros didn't notice.

Said Tampa Bay Buccaneers scouting director Ken Harrock: "He was used like the MX missile, rotating from standup defensive end to all four line backer positions, waiting for the proper time to explode. They disguised him so he could make plays. They moved him around a lot so that when the other team came to the line of scrimmage, they'd say, 'Where's Green?'"

"People were petrified of Green," Sunseri said. "But they couldn't run away from him because we had Ricky Jackson on the other side of the line."

Even when teams did try to run away from Green, it was usually fruitless.

"I remember watching from the sidelines," said John Brown, a sophomore light end on that Green won the 1980 Maxwell Award and Lombardi Award.

1981 team. "He had been a defensive end, but he was so good, the other team would run a swing play to the opposite side. All of sudden, he'd be in your backfield."

of dual end and then you'd see Green with his arms outstretched, standing over the guy. He was just so sure."

He was on the list of players who Green coached during his career. In 1978, he was the 1978 Maxwell Award winner and the 1980 Maxwell Award as college football's best player and the Lombardi Award as the nation's best defensive player. He was the UP! Player of the Year and was second to South Carolina's George Rogers in the Heisman Trophy balloting. The highest finish ever by a purely defensive player.

Green was a first-round draft pick by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 1981 and was traded to the Miami Dolphins in 1985. He has twice been selected to the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl.

"Danny:" Hometown Hero

Of all the kudos directed at quarterback Dan Marino during his career, the one from Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden summed Marino up best. "He's a pro quarterback in college, really."

Marino, a hometown hero who attended Central Catholic High School in the shadow of the Pitt campus, was a fan of the team and eagerly sought high school coaching advice from Bowden.

Marino was a four-year starter at quarterback for the Panthers, leading the team to a 24-20 victory over Georgia in the 1982 Sugar Bowl.

Marino threw 79 TD passes during his college career.

Marino was drafted in the fourth round in 1979 by the Kansas City Royals. He was a first-round pick by the Kansas City Royals in 1979. But he was drafted by the Kansas City Royals in 1979. He was a first-round pick by the Kansas City Royals in 1979. He was a first-round pick by the Kansas City Royals in 1979.

Dan Marino is the best quarterback we ever coached against. He was a first-round pick by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 1981.

The 6-4, 215-pound All-American had a rocket-launching right arm and a lightning release.

Marino was a classic drop-back quarterback. But his success as a passer was also as a runner. In 1979, Marino led the Panthers to a Fiesta Bowl victory after replacing injured Rick Upchurch.

As a sophomore in 1980, he was one of the country's leading passers until he was sidelined with a knee injury and replaced by Trocano. He still finished with 1,513 yards and 14 touchdowns.

But it was his magical junior season in 1981 that truly earmarked him for greatness, and put him on a path that one day surely will lead to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton.

Marino passed for 2,876 yards and 31 touchdowns that year, leading Pitt to its third consecutive national championship. He enhanced his reputation for being the "dude" in the 1982 Sugar Bowl when he fired a 33-yard touchdown pass to light end John Brown with just 35 seconds remaining in the game to give Pitt a pulsating come-from-behind 24-20 victory over Georgia. That victory put the icing on the winningest three-year stretch in Pitt history—three consecutive 11-1 seasons for a combined record of 33-4. It was also the third consecutive bowl victory for the Panthers, who defeated Arizona 16-10 in the Fiesta Bowl in 1980, the 1979 season and crushed South Carolina 37-9 in the 1980 Gator Bowl.

Marino began his career at Pitt in 1982 by passing for 2,432 yards and 17 touchdowns as Pitt made bowl appearances in 1982 and 1983.

A first-round draft pick by the Miami Dolphins in 1984, Marino has rewritten many of the NFL's passing records and has been selected to the Pro Bowl five times.

Bill Fralich: Man-Child to All-Pro

"Forget Superman. He's the sissy who has to leap over tall buildings. Fratric knocks them down."

Los Gilmanes, The Phoenix Gazette

It must have been a disguise

The baby boy born to William and Dorothy Fralic on Halloween of 1982 topped the scales at seven pounds, three ounces. Who could have predicted this growth rate?

At the age of nine, Billy F. ate weighed 175 pounds. As an eighth grader, he stood 6 foot-3 and weighed 235 pounds. And tales of his size are now almost as legendary as what he has accomplished in athletics.

I've always been big, & he's told me. JPI writer Paula Smith during an interview from Hall's playing days at Fort Meade was always the biggest guy in my class. Even grade school.

At the age of 13, Felic developed a passion for weightlifting. Somewhat envious of his older brothers Mike and Joe, who were to grow up to play college football, young Bill wanted to pump the iron and develop his frame as well, even to the point of convincing Mrs. Felic to squaw a sprained if the car accident bones were "natural."

Andy Urbanic, who was the football coach at Pontiac at the time, in a letter a few days after the shooting, told the Post-Tribune he remembers the late athlete distinctly as a fall

"I never remember a kid who had such specific goals at such an early age. [With] Sawa, he not only wanted to be a football player, but an offensive tackle in the NFL."

It also became the first sophomore ever to

Bill Frahe, a prototype of offensive lineman, had his sights set on a playing career at an early age.

Mark Mau following the 1990 season

Following the Panthers' 1983 win against Notre Dame in South Bend, the accolades began to pick up in intensity.

"I'm playing against Fralic, something I can tell my kids 30 years from now," said Neri. "I came defensive lineman Eric Dorsey. I've read so much about him. It's like playing against a god. When you think of Pitt, you think of Bill Fralic."

Said Pitt Coach Foge Fazio: "I haven't seen a better offensive lineman as a player or as a coach. I can't believe anybody can be better than Bill."

And from his line coach, Joe Moore, one of the nation's most highly respected teachers at that position: "Bill Fralic is the best. If you can find somebody better, bring him in. We've been privileged to coach some good ones here. But none better than Bill Fralic. Those kind only pass through once."

Falic was a three-time All-American for the Panthers, and was the only underclassman to be among the four finalists for the 1961 Heisman Trophy as given in 1962.

the "Pancake," a statistical barometer for each time Fraile put an opposing defensive lineman on his back. An intern monitors every Pitt offensive play to determine if the Panthers ran the play over Fraile's position in a 1983 game at Maryland. Pitt ran 11 consecutive plays over his star tackle.

One of the first players selected in the 1985 NFL draft, Fralic was a four-time All-Pro member of the Atlanta Falcons and is currently playing with the Detroit Lions.

Defensive end Rickey Jackson was Pitt's slotwart opposite Hugh Green. Jackson has enjoyed a stellar career with the New Orleans Saints.

Offensive tackle Mark May won the Outland Trophy in 1980 and is still playing in the NFL.

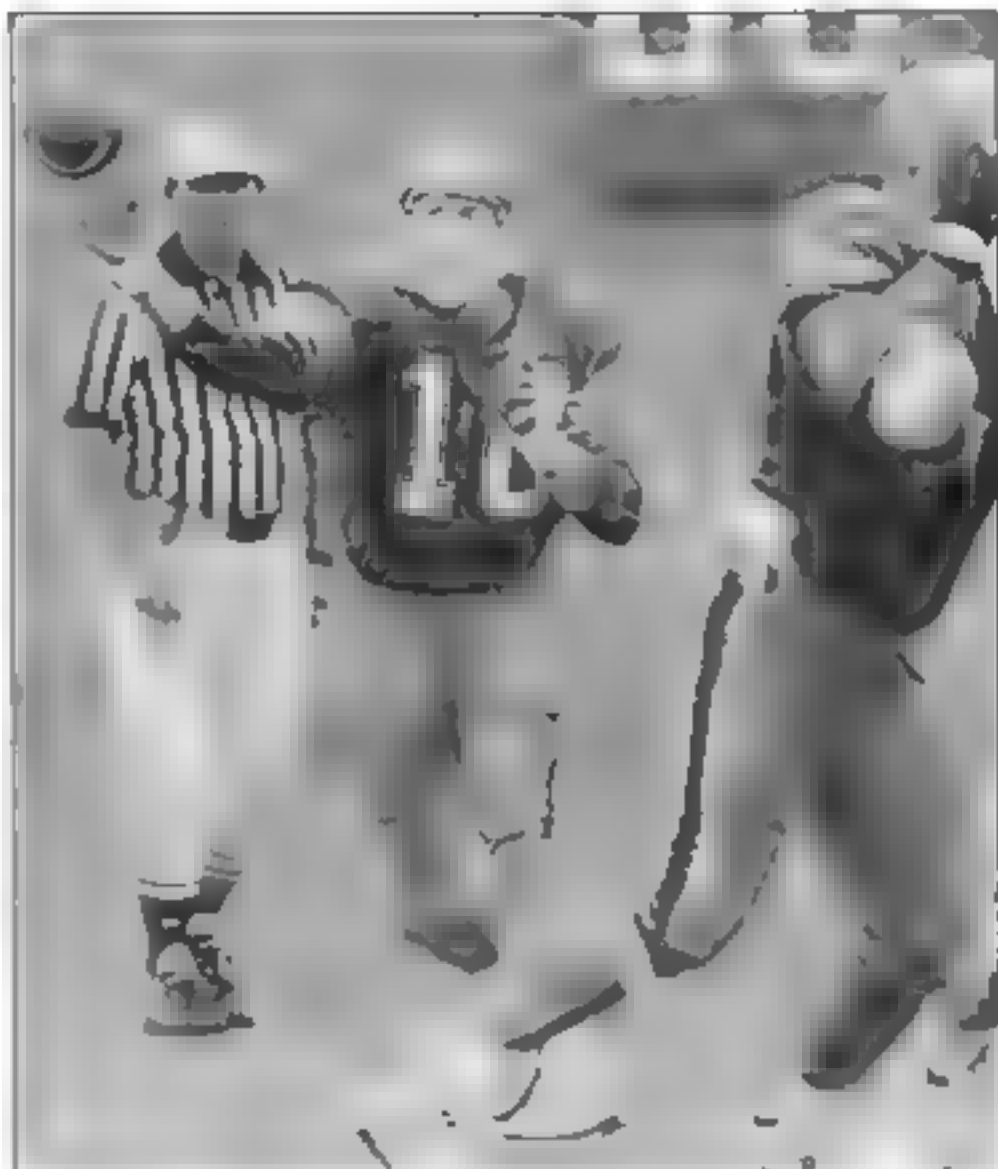

The NFL Connection

Pitt's teams from the late 1980s until the present have continued to supply the National Football League with its players. Starting with first-round draft pick Tony Woods (by the Seattle Seahawks in 1987 and then Craig "Ironhead" Heyward's transfer and selection by the New Orleans Saints in 1988, the players have made their mark at professional football's most enlivened level of competition.

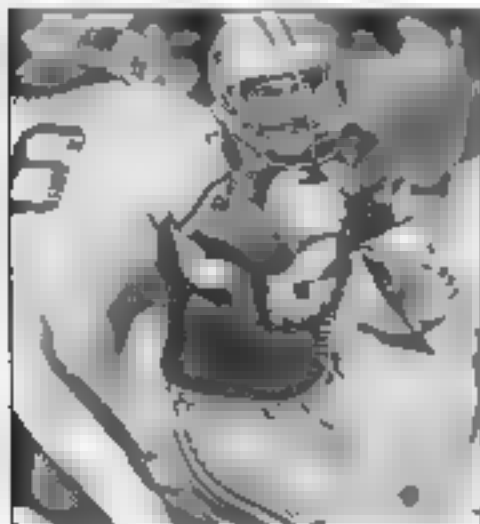

Other prominent NFL draft picks who played at Pitt during the late 80s and early 90s include Butch Grossman (first round, 1989 by the San Diego Chargers), Tim Hinkley (first round, 1989 by the Pittsburgh Steelers), Marc Spindler (third round, 1991 by the Detroit Lions), Mark Stoops (third round, 1990 by the Dallas Cowboys), Sean Gilliam (first round, 1992 by the Los Angeles Rams), Steve Groer (second round, 1992 by the Los Angeles Rams), Kurt Hummel (fourth round, 1992 by the New York Giants), and Jim McInnis (fourth round, 1992 by the Cincinnati Bengals).

In addition to mid-Pitt players of the late 80s and early 90s who continued to distinguish themselves in the NFL, include Randy Olson (Indianapolis Colts), Jerry Olinsky (Pittsburgh Steelers), Mark Gura (New York Jets) and Tom Schaefer (Kansas City Chiefs).

This last April, another Pitt quarterback, Alex van Pelt, was selected in the eighth round by his adopted hometown team, the Pittsburgh Steelers. He is the first Pitt quarterback drafted by the Steelers since they selected Rick Triano in the 21st round of the 1981 draft. Van Pelt, who now stands alone atop most of Pitt's single-game, season, and career statistics categories, is also third on the NCAA's all-time lists for both passing and total offense yardage.

Alex Van Pelt, who started every game for Pitt during the past four seasons, was drafted in the eighth round by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Backyard Brawl

It is called The Backyard Brawl, and for good reason. When Pitt and West Virginia the Panthers' neighbor some 70 miles to the south in Morgantown, square off on the gridiron, players, coaches, and fans from both schools can count on 60 minutes of furious football.

In the 97 years since that inaugural game, Pitt has dominated the series, holding a 55-26-3 advantage. And while upsets may not have been the rule in this series, there have been more than a few.

In 1955, half a century after the first meeting between the two teams, the Panthers hosted West Virginia at Pitt Stadium before a crowd of 57,996. Pitt was a slight underdog, and scouts from the Sugar Bowl and Gator Bowl were on hand to check out the Mountaineers. But after Pitt knocked off West Virginia 26-7 and followed that victory with a 20-0 whitewash of Penn State the next week, it was the Panthers (7-3) who were invited to the Sugar Bowl. West Virginia despite an 8-2 record, went uninvited.

Ten years later in a game played at Mountaineer Field, Pitt and West Virginia exploded for a combined total of 114 points, the greatest offensive display in the series.

West Virginia jumped out to a 21-0 lead but Pitt pared back to knot the score at 28. It was tied again, 42-42, before the Mountaineers went ahead, 49-42. Pitt then scored to make it 49-48 and had a chance to knot the score one more time, but instead opted for a two-point conversion, which would have given the Panthers a one-point lead. The conversion attempt failed, and West Virginia pulled away for a 63-48 win. Eric Crabtree had a phenomenal day for the Panthers, throwing four passes, including two touchdowns, and kicking all six.

Dave Havern engineered an improbable 36-35 comeback win for Pitt in 1970.

For many fans, the 1970 matchup might have been the greatest game in the history of the series.

"It was two games in one," said Jack Henry, a former Pittsburgh sportswriter. West Virginia dominated the first half and Pitt the second. Henry said he was so scared Pitt so bad at halftime that people were walking out.

"In the second half, all West Virginia could do was hold on. If they got maybe one more first down, they would have run out on Pitt. But they couldn't do it, and Pitt could.

The Panthers were 3-1 heading into that game, West Virginia, a six-point favorite, was 4-1. The winner would emerge as the No. 1 team in the East.

West Virginia, with Ed Williams rushing for three touchdowns, spurred to a 21-0 lead early in the second quarter and led 35-8 at halftime.

Despite trailing by 27 points, Pitt came out in the second half determined to establish a running game. (Incredibly, despite trailing by big margins throughout the game, Pitt ran 17 plays and only 16 were passes.)

No one paid much attention when Pitt tailback Dennis Farns scored from one yard out early in the third quarter, and quarterback Dave Havern completed a two-point conversion pass to Tim Klimek to make it 35-16. But after Dave Garriott's five-yard touchdown run and another two-point conversion pass from Havern to Klimek cut the Mountaineers' advantage to 35-24, Pitt fans began to dream of a miracle.

After another Pitt score elicited WVU's lead to 35-30, things got interesting.

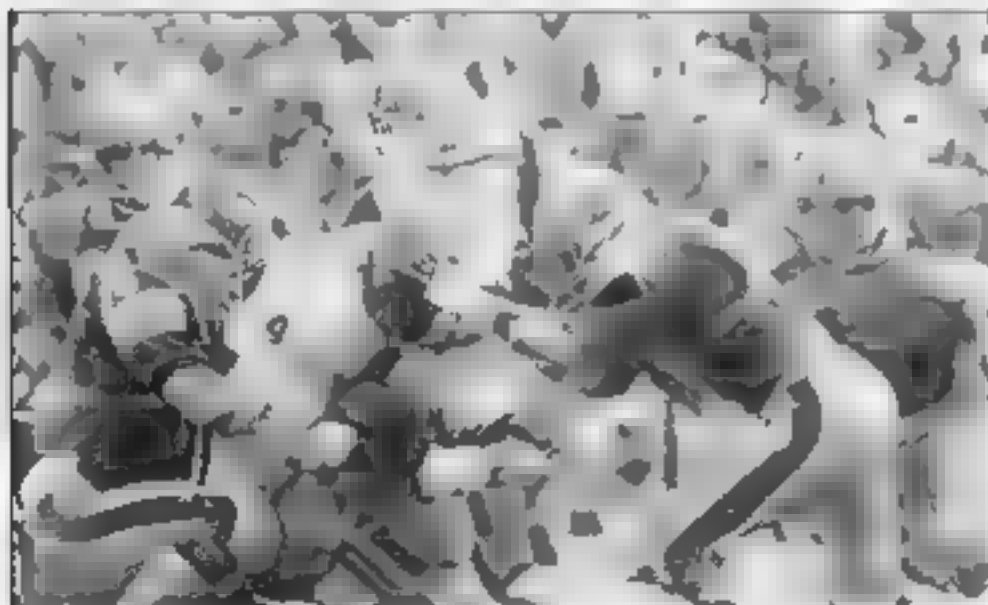

When Pitt got the ball for what was to be its final drive, there was no rush, wrote Bob Smizik of the Pittsburgh Press. "The Panthers marched 86 yards in 17 plays to the West Virginia 6 without throwing a pass. But on third and four, Havern surprised everyone by taking a Bull Durham-style and zong with 55 seconds to go to put Pitt ahead.

West Virginia didn't quit, and quickly moved the ball to the Pitt 38. But the Panthers recovered a fumble and emerged with one of the most dramatic victories in its football history.

Four years ago, there was some déjà vu in a classic game at Mountaineer Field.

With Pitt trailing 31-9 in the fourth quarter, the Panthers scored 22 unanswered points with fewer than 10 minutes remaining, and Ed Frazier kicked a game-tying field goal as time expired to give Pitt a stunning 31-31 tie.

Two years ago, before a capacity crowd and national TV (ESPN) audience from Mountaineer Field, the Panthers avenged a 38-24 loss to WVU in 1990 with a convincing 34-3 victory in the season opener for both teams. It was also the initial Big East Football Conference game for both the Panthers and the Mountaineers. WVU returned the favor to the Panthers in Pittsburgh, last September, 44-6. Strangely, the home team has failed to win this game since 1986, when Pitt won at Pitt Stadium, 49-16.

Pitt Hall of Famers

College Football Hall of Fame

Johnny Majors became the fifth Pitt coach to be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame on June 10, 1988. Majors coached the Panthers from 1973-76, and guided them to their ninth national championship.

The team Majors inherited was 1-10 in 1972, but the turnaround was sudden. Pitt jumped to 6-5-1 in 1973 (including a trip to the Fiesta Bowl), 7-4 in 1974, 8-4 with a Sun Bowl victory in 1975, and the perfect 12-0 national championship season of 1976. That year, and Majors' Pitt career, was capped by a 27-3 Sugar Bowl win over Georgia. He compiled a 43-13-1 record at Pitt.

Majors, who coached at Iowa State before turning to Pitt, returned to coach his alma mater Tennessee after the 1976 season. As a player there, Majors finished second in the Heisman Trophy polloting to Paul Hornung in 1956. He returned to Pittsburgh as coach on December 11, 1992.

Herb McCracken, carrying the ball during a Varsity Alumni game from the late 1920s, was one of Pop Warner's top players for the Panthers. Both are members of the College Football Hall of Fame.

Pro Football Hall of Fame

Mike Ditka received pro football's highest honor in July 30, 1988, when he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. He is the second Pitt football player to be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, joining Joe Schmidt.

Ditka was an All-American tight end at Pitt in 1960, his senior season. He led the Panthers in receiving three consecutive years. Ditka was also an excellent linebacker and punter. He was the captain of the 1960 squad.

His pro football career included All-Pro honors, and Ditka was a member of the Chicago Bears' 1963 NFL Championship team, and the Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl V championship team. Ditka worked as an assistant coach at Dallas for nine seasons, including another Super Bowl the year.

He spent 10 seasons as the head coach of the Chicago Bears. The Bears won Super Bowl XX under Ditka.

Ditka is Pitt's only alumnus to be enshrined in both the Pro and College Football Halls of Fame.

Schmidt, Pitt's other inductee in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, was an All-American linebacker at Pitt in 1952. His senior season. He followed that with a brilliant 13-year career with the Detroit Lions, and was a member of the Lions' two NFL Championship teams. He later coached the team for six seasons, and led Detroit to its only playoff appearance of the 1970s. He was inducted in 1973.

Joe Skladany, who lettered for the Panthers from 1931-33, is a member of the College Football Hall of Fame.

Pitt's College of Coaches

An extension of the great Pitt football tradition of its players and coaches is a list of men who played at Pitt and/or served as assistant coaches at Pitt before becoming head coaches at either the collegiate or professional level.

Eight men who went to school and played their football at Pitt later coached the Panthers: W.D. Hockensmith (1901), Joe Thompson (1908-12), Jock Sutherland (1924-38), Charley Bowser (1939-42), Walter M. Igan (1947-48), John Michelosen (1955-65), Carl DePasqua (1969-72), and Seralino "Foge" Fazio (1982-85).

Three Pitt men also coached the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League although one, Mike Nixon—known as Mike Nickstick during his playing/assistant coaching career at Pitt—never served as head coach of the Panthers. John Michelosen coached the Steelers from 1948-51 and compiled a 20-26-2 record during that period, while Jock Sutherland directed the Steelers for the 1945 and 1946 campaigns, posting a 13-9-1 mark. Mike Nixon was a co-coach of the Steelers when the pro team played its home games at Pitt Stadium.

Here is a list of former Pitt assistants, the years they were staff members with the Panthers, and the head coaching jobs they later had:

Carson Long's two second-half field goals. The defense created six turnovers and limited the Bulldogs to 8 yards. The defense actually caught more Georgia passes than did Georgia receivers (four interceptions compared to three completions in 22 attempts). Vince Dooley, Georgia's head coach, said this about the 200 Panthers: "They played today they are the best in the country. They're amazing, balanced. They are the best defensive team we've seen. I think that's obvious. They are also the best offensive team we've seen." Pitt coach Johnny Majors, who completed his four-year stint with the '93-94 team after a combined 11-29 mark in the previous four years, was named Coach-of-the-Year for the second time in his career.

PITT	10	7	17	3	- 37

Pitt's defense wanted this game badly. Its leader for four years, Hugh Green, finished second in the Heisman Trophy voting behind South Carolina's George Rogers. With the chance to avenge that loss, Pitt smothered the Gamecocks with a swarming defense and an efficient offense. Rex Harris and Dan Marino split the pigskin, with Harris throwing a touchdown pass and Marino scoring a touchdown. Although Harris gained 14 yards, his 40-yard pass was intercepted in the game. Harris' rushing output, an 81-yard touchdown, Rogers' fumble on the first play of the game, leading to a 10-0 lead. Dan Marino scored two touchdowns, including a 14-yard touchdown, and led the Panthers to a 37-9 victory. Marino made 14 plays, Pitt finished the season 11-1.

PRO FOOTBALL

FUTURE

The Pittsburgh Steelers logo, featuring a helmet with the word "Pitt" written across it, is positioned at the bottom of the text block.

Pitt Players In The NFL

During the past 17 years, few schools can match the number and quality quotient of players the University of Pittsburgh has forwarded to the National Football League.

Of course, Pitt through the decades has been a fertile talent source for the NFL, both for players and coaches. Standouts such as Marshall Goldberg, Jack Sullivan, Joe Schmidt, Joe Walton, Fred Cox, Marty Schottenheimer and Mike Ditka are among the prominent names in a long roll call of Panthers who have gained fame in pro football.

But in the past 17 years, there has been a dramatic surge of top Pitt-bred talent in the NFL. Currently Marty Schottenheimer is the head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, and Dave Wannstedt replaced Ditka as coach of the Chicago Bears.

Probably no school can match the kind of instant impact Pitt's recent NFL players have made. Of Pitt's 15 first-round picks since 1981, 13 became starters as rookies.

The great Pitt teams of the late 1970s and early 1980s began providing this motherlode of impact talent to the NFL. Heisman Trophy running back Tony Dorsett started the stream when the Dallas Cowboys traded up with the Seattle Seahawks to select him with the second pick of the 1977 draft. A year later a pair of Dorsett's teammates on Pitt's 1976 national championship team, defensive end Randy Holloway (a Minnesota Vikings first-round pick) and quarterback Matt Cavanaugh (second round by the New England Patriots) joined Dorsett in the NFL.

Three consecutive seasons (1979, 1980 and 1981) provided another rich haul of future professional talent. The 1980 squad, in particular, was blessed with an extraordinary number of future NFL stars.

Twelve players were drafted from Pitt's 1980 squad, including three first-round picks: defensive end Hugh Green (Tampa Bay Buccaneers), tackle Mark May (Washington Redskins), and running back Randy McMillan (Baltimore Colts). Defensive end Rickey Jackson (second round, New Orleans Saints), guard Russ Grimm (third round, Washington Redskins), safety Carlton Williamson (third round, San Francisco 49ers), tight end Benjie Pryor (fifth round, Cincinnati Bengals), defensive tackle Jerry Boyarisky (fifth round, New Dan Marino has been a stellar quarterback for the Miami Dolphins.

Orleans Saints), defensive tackle Bill Neal (fifth round, New York Giants), and quarterback Rick Trocano (11th round, Pittsburgh Steelers) were the other draftees. Seven additional seniors on the 1980 squad signed free agent contracts with NFL clubs.

Among the underclassmen on that fabulous 1980 team were three players who also would all become NFL first round draftees in 1983: quarterback Dan Marino (Miami Dolphins), tackle Jim Coveri (Chicago Bears), and defensive back Tim Lewis (Green Bay Packers), as well as defensive tackle Bill Maas, whom the Kansas City Chiefs chose in the first round in 1984. Two other underclassmen in 1980, center Jim Sweeney and defensive back Tom Flynn, have gone on to have fine NFL careers.

The Pitt player pipeline to the NFL has continued throughout the rest of the 1980s. Subsequent first-round draft picks have included guard Bill Fralic (drafted by the Atlanta Falcons but currently with the Detroit Lions) and defensive end Chris Coleman (Minnesota Vikings) in 1985; defensive tackle Bob Buczkowski (Los Angeles Raiders) in 1986; linebacker Tony Woods (Seattle Seahawks) in 1987; running back Craig Heyward (New Orleans Saints) in 1988; and defensive end Burt Grossman (San Diego Chargers) and offensive tackle Tom Ricketts (Pittsburgh Steelers) in 1989; and defensive end Sean Gilbert (Los Angeles Rams) in 1992.

NFL talent scouts echo one another when they discuss Pitt prospects.

"Pitt players are a known commodity," says Les Miller, former college personnel director for the San Diego Chargers. "You hardly see any failures there. Not only do they make it, but they become the players everyone expects them to be. They all seem to have the right work ethic and a desire to be the best."

There is no question the kids from Pitt come ready to play in the National Football League," says John Butler, the director of college scouting for the Buffalo Bills.

"I think it is probably true that the kids at Pitt are a little more adaptive to the NFL than kids from most other schools," says Joe Zoccolay, director of player personnel for the Philadelphia Eagles. "Pitt recruits outstanding athletes, then teaches them pro techniques and uses a lot of pro schemes."

According to a former Pitt great, hard work and skillful coaching are also part of the mix.

At Pitt most of the players come from Western Pennsylvania and have that Western Pennsylvania work ethic. Says Jim Coveri, who was named the NFL Offensive Lineman of the Year in 1988, "You work as hard as you possibly can, and then you work a little harder."

Pitt Players in the Super Bowl

The Super Bowl is without a doubt the biggest annual one-day event in American sports. A number of former Pitt players have played (and coached) in the Super Bowl, and many wear the Vince Lombardi Trophy in fact, at least one Pitt alumnus has been associated with the winning team in each of the last 11 Super Bowls.

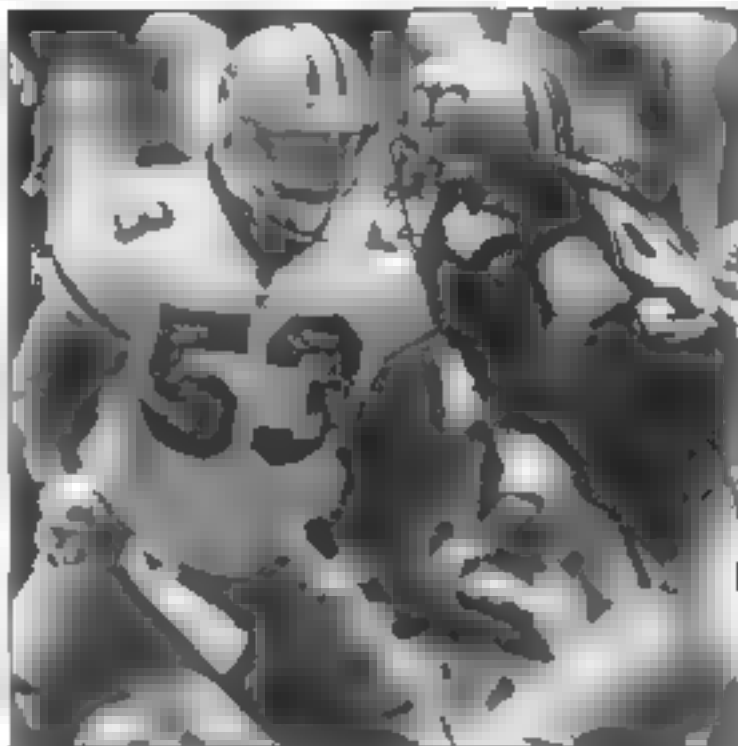

Most recently, Mark Stepnoski appeared as the starting center for the Super Bowl XXVI Champion Dallas Cowboys. Stepnoski was an All-America guard and Outland Trophy finalist for the Panthers in 1988, while also receiving Pitt's Blue-Gold Award and the AA Top Six Award in recognition of his academic excellence.

Mike Ditka is the only Pitt man to win the Super Bowl, as both a player and head coach. Ditka was a member of the Chicago Bears when they defeated Miami in Super Bowl VI in 1972. Ditka coached the Chicago Bears to victory in Super Bowl XX against the New England Patriots. Among the Bears' starters that day was tackle Jim Covert, a former Pitt All-American.

Carlton Williamson added a third Super Bowl ring to his collection five years ago as a member of the NFL Champion San Francisco 49ers. The first Pitt alumnus to accomplish this, Williamson also earned rings in Super Bowls XVI and XIX. Only two other former Panthers, Russ Grimm and Mark May, have captured the coveted prize more than once. Grimm and May both received rings for the Washington Redskins triumphs in Super Bowls XVII, XVIII and XXII. Grimm received another ring in '99.

No Pitt player was more fortunate to get to the Super Bowl than Tom Flynn, who began the 1986 season with Green Bay, but Packers released him, and late in the same season reacquainted with the New York Giants, who captured Super Bowl XXI.

On the flipside, Fred Cox is a star at Pitt in the late 1950s and early 1960s and a placekicker with the Minnesota Vikings, each in the ignominy of Super Bowl defeat four times. Dan Marino, who won the best season award for a pro quarterback in 1984, Pitt's sack king, went to San Francisco in the Super Bowl.

Mark Stepnoski, the starting center for the Super Bowl XXVI Champion Dallas Cowboys, added to Pitt's long list of former players who played in the Super Bowl.

Russ Grimm was a standout center for the Panthers who went on to play in four Super Bowls as a member of the Washington Redskins before his retirement in 1991.

The University of Pittsburgh

A Place to Discover

Founded in a log cabin in 1787, the University of Pittsburgh is among the oldest institutions of higher education in the United States. From Pitt classrooms have come more than 200,000 graduates, whose accomplishments range from winning Olympic gold medals to unlocking the secrets of DNA. From University laboratories have come Jonas Salk's polio vaccine and the identification of Vitamin C. Today this former frontier University is an internationally recognized center of learning and research, strong in the arts and sciences and the professions.

Campuses

The University's Pittsburgh campus consists of more than 80 buildings on 132 acres in Oakland, the city's educational center. Pitt also has campuses in Bradford, Greensburg, Johnstown, and Titusville, Pennsylvania.

Enrollment

Enrollment at Pitt's five campuses stands at approximately 34,336 students—24,078 full-time and 10,258 part-time. 24,613 are undergraduates and 9,723 are graduate students. Almost 28,000 of these are enrolled at the Pittsburgh campus.

Faculty

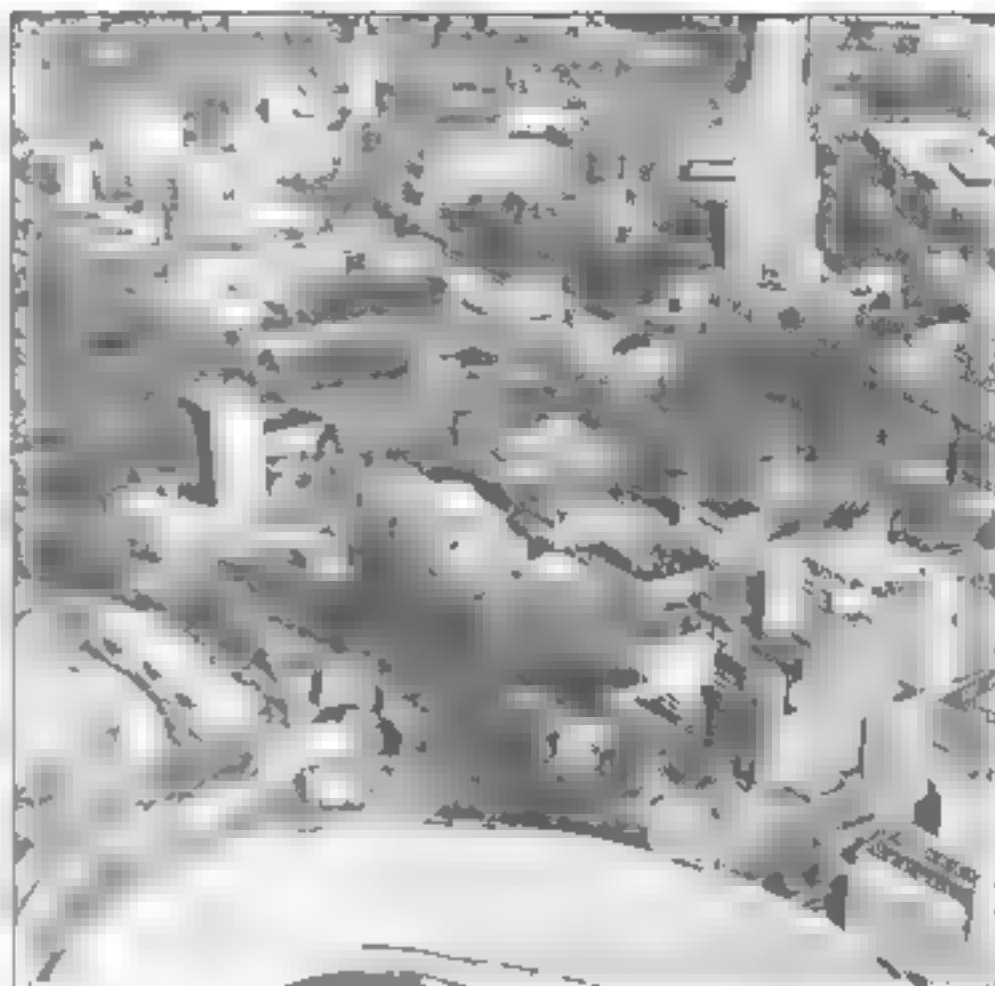

The Pitt faculty totals 2,981 full-time and 809 part-time. The University has 49 endowed chairs and professorships. Each year, the University honors faculty excellence with Chancellor's Distinguished Teaching, and Research and Public Service Awards.

Governance

The University is a state-related, comprehensive institution serving the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the nation, and the international community through its missions of instruction, research, and public service. Its Board of Trustees has 48 members, 12 of whom are appointed by the state. Chancellor J. Dennis O'Connor, a nationally eminent biologist, took office on Aug. 1, 1991, as the 16th Chancellor of the University. O'Connor, 51, previously held top academic posts at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and UCLA.

Research

In 1974, Pitt was elected to membership in the Association of American Universities (AAU), an acknowledgement of its position as one of the top research universities in North America. University researchers bring in more than $193 million annually for sponsored research and service projects.

Pitt Facts

Pitt is 206 years old, making it one of the nation's oldest educational institutions established in 1787, just after the original colonial colleges.

Pitt is listed among the nation's best public universities in Richard M. Lipp's book The Public Ivies.

Pitt has nearly 20 programs among the nation's finest, including: Anthropology, Art History, Behavioral Neuroscience, Business, Chemistry, History and Philosophy of Science, Internal Medicine, Latin American Studies, Law, Library and Information Science, Microbiology, Nursing, Philosophy, Physics, Psychology, Public Administration, Social Work, Spanish and Statistics.

Pitt's Honors College allows highly motivated undergraduate students to pursue exceptionally challenging honors courses and degrees and to conduct independent research. Pitt students have won a number of prestigious awards in recent years, including Rhodes, Marshall, and Truman scholarships, and national Mellon Fellowships in the Humanities.

Pitt athletes have won national championships in football, conference titles and national rankings in basketball, and Olympic gold medals in track.

Pitt's University Center for International Studies offers an extensive study-abroad program and the opportunity to spend an entire semester aboard the SS Universe, the world's only floating campus. UCIS also offers area studies programs in Asian, Latin American, East European, Russian, and West European studies.

Pitt offers students valuable internships in a city ranked among the nation's largest corporate headquarters cities.

Chancellor J. Dennis O'Connor

J. Dennis O'Connor's love for college athletics is never far beneath the tall Irish American scholar who grew up in the streets of Chicago. In fact, during his first days as the University of Pittsburgh's 16th Chancellor, O'Connor, a prominent research scientist and academic administrator, made it clear that Pitt's active NCAA Division I athletic program, along with its distinguished academic programs and world-class medical center, was one of the drawing cards that helped to attract him to the Recently, O'Connor 51 reiterated his personal commitment to improvement of athletic programs and to ensuring that academic excellence and athletic prowess co-exist at the University of Pittsburgh.

"University presidents and chancellors must provide direct and aggressive leadership in intercollegiate athletics, reflecting the enduring and honored values of a higher education," said O'Connor.

During their first year at Pitt, O'Connor met personally with several of the football recruits and their parents.

"I tell the students and the parents that we expect our athletes to graduate, that our University will help them to graduate, and that our athletic program will make no compromises on integrity," O'Connor said. "That is the kind of direct and aggressive leadership you will see from me as long as I am Chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh."

O'Connor came to Pitt from the University of North Carolina (UNC) at Chapel Hill where he had served as provost and vice chancellor of academic affairs. O'Connor held numerous senior positions at the University of California-Los Angeles (UCLA).

He began at UCLA as an assistant professor of zoology (1968-73), served as associate professor of biology (1973-79) and was vice chancellor and professor of developmental biology (1979-87). O'Connor chaired UCLA's department of biology from 1979 to 1981 and then served as dean of life sciences until 1987.

A native of Chicago, O'Connor earned his bachelor's degree in 1963 from Loyola University where he played basketball and earned his master's degree in 1968 from his native Chicago in 1968. O'Connor was awarded his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

After his departure, O'Connor has continued as a working scientist, conducting research in developmental biology, particularly in the area of gene expression. He has also published more than 80 papers on embryonic development.

journals in addition to lecturing around the world on a wide range of scientific, academic and policy issues. Since coming to Pitt in August 1991, O'Connor has taught biology at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, a duty he plans to continue.

During his tenure at UNC, O'Connor served as vice President of the Triangle Universities Center for Advanced Studies and as a board member of both the North Carolina Biotechnology Center and the Research Triangle Institute.

From 1982 to 1984, O'Connor was a member of the UCLA 1984 Olympic Games Committee when that institution hosted the Olympic Village. In 1986, he was an academic specialist in Yemen under the auspices of the United States Information Agency. In addition, O'Connor was a visiting professor of zoology at Monash University, Melbourne, Australia, in 1977 and visiting professor of genetics at the University of Nijmegen (Holland) in 1975 and 1978.

O'Connor and his wife, Anne, a nationally recognized oncology nurse specialist, have three grown children, Timothy, a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Michigan, Deirdre, a social worker in Chicago, and Gavin, a student in the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

L. Oval Jaynes, Director of Athletics

When Oval Jaynes became athletics director at Pitt on September 1, 1991, he wasn't about to sail into uncharted waters from either a geographic or administrative vantage point. Jaynes, who spent much time of his professional life from the mid-1960s until the early '80s coaching football at the intercollegiate level, spent a substantial portion of that time recruiting throughout Pennsylvania and called his appointment at Pitt "almost like a homecoming."

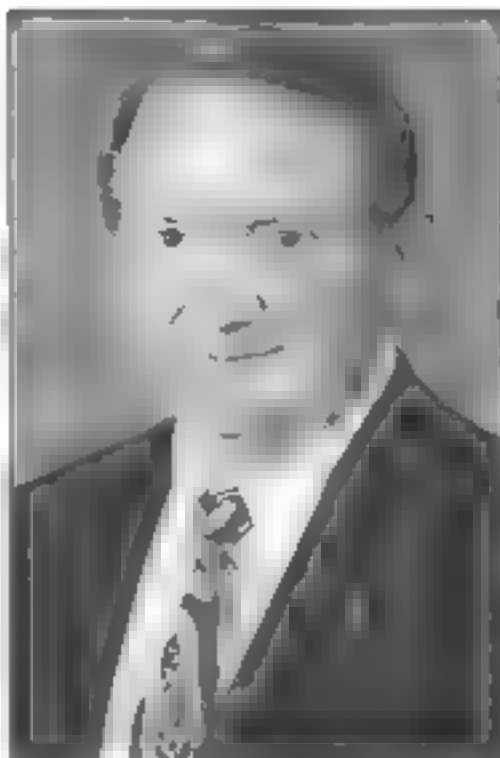

And in keeping with the spirit of homecoming, Jaynes presided over the recent return of another football coach who spent some time in the Steel City during four of the most memorable seasons on Pitt's long football history. John Majors' selection as Pitt's 31st head football coach sparked the interest and curiosity of Pitt -- and college football -- fans everywhere, and while it remains to be seen how soon the effects will be evident on the football field, Panther fans have responded to the return of Majors by showing their support of the athletic department. Just this day, following a remarkable season in our ticket sales.

Jaynes has maintained a busy agenda since the day he arrived at Pitt, traveling to Golden Panther and alumni functions throughout Pennsylvania and the Northeast to spread the Pitt story and to cement lasting commitments between Pitt people and their university.

Dr. J. Dennis O'Connor, who had become Pitt's chancellor just two weeks before Jaynes was announced as Pitt's athletic director, remarked at the press conference to announce Jaynes' hiring: "First and foremost, he, Jaynes, shares our view that all varsity athletes are, first, students who choose to compete in intercollegiate athletics, and that athletics are an integral part of the academic life of this University. He also shares our philosophy of sport, based on the principles of integrity and excellence throughout all men's and women's programs, in an environment of teaching and scholarship."

Jaynes and O'Connor were not total strangers before this time either. They both had crossed paths at the University of North Carolina (UNC) at Chapel Hill.

Before coming to Pitt, Jaynes had been director of athletics at Colorado State University since 1986 and is widely credited with revitalizing the school's football and basketball programs both on and off the field, with dramatically improved winning records in the stands and significant increases in attendance. He is credited with instilling a new level of proficiency to the university's athletics program in general, from the high-profile revenue sports to the student intramural programs.

You have to do it (intercollegiate athletics) the right way, because you are such a visible part of the university. And I'm very aware of that, and I want our young men and our young women who represent our department to be aware because, yes, it is our responsibility."

Under Jaynes, Colorado State's basketball team earned two straight NCAA tournament berths, two Western Athletic Conference championships, and a third-place finish in the National Invitational Tournament. Basketball attendance also more than doubled during that time.

In football, the Rams emerged from relative obscurity to become a national force. In 1990, Colorado State defeated Oregon in the Freedom Bowl, CSU's first bowl game since 1962's. The attendance also soared, with season ticket sales tripling.

Jaynes also supervised the reorganization of the Ram Booster Club, whose creative fund-raising methods produced mass increases in financial support by Colorado State supporters, and was instrumental in Colorado State's working relationship with Prime Sports Network, whose television packages now include live coverage of football and basketball games in more than 20 million homes nationwide.

Jaynes charges all Pitt student-athletes with meeting the challenges presented by today's rigorous academics-athletics environment.

"You have to do it (intercollegiate athletics) the right way, because you are such a visible part of the university," he said. "And I want our young men and our young women who represent our department to be aware because, yes, it is our responsibility. It's a great honor to be an athlete and to be a student at Pitt. We're here because of the opportunities the University provides."

Before becoming athletics director at Colorado State, Jaynes was associate director of athletics at Auburn. Prior to that, he served as an assistant football coach at The Citadel (1965-67), Wake Forest (1968-72), South Carolina (1973-74), and Wyoming (1975-80). He was head football coach at Gardner-Webb College from 1975-77.

Jaynes has also been active in the NCAA. He was honored in 1990 with one of the most prestigious appointments available to university administrators when he was named to the 46-member NCAA Council. He is a former member of the NCAA Nominating Committee and, while at Colorado State, served as chairman of the NCAA District VI Postgraduate Scholarship Committee.

Born July 25, 1940, Jaynes is a 1962 mathematics graduate from Appalachian State in Boone, North Carolina. Jaynes also holds a master's degree from the University of North Carolina. He is married to the former Priscilla Sink. They have two sons: Lee, a 1988 North Carolina graduate, resides in South Carolina, while Brandon, a 1988 North Carolina graduate, and his wife Jennifer, a 1991 North Carolina graduate, reside in Chapel Hill.

Pitt Stadium History

Not until 1925 did Pitt football teams have a home to call their own.

From 1890 to 1908, Pitt (then known as Western University of Pennsylvania) played at various ballparks including ~~at~~ in Park and Exposition Park on Pittsburgh's North Side, in the general vicinity of Three Rivers Stadium.

From 1908-924 Pitt teams played at Forbes Field the old home of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Forbes Quadrangle which houses university classrooms and several departments bordered by Roberto Clemente Drive, now stands on the old Forbes Field site.

Because of great interest in Pitt football Forbes Field's capacity of 32,000 grew to be inadequate in the early 920s. The 11,000 alumni and 9,000 students, each of whom were entitled to two seats, left little space for the general public. This was especially true for the big games of the day against Washington & Jefferson, Carnegie Tech, Penn State, and West Virginia.

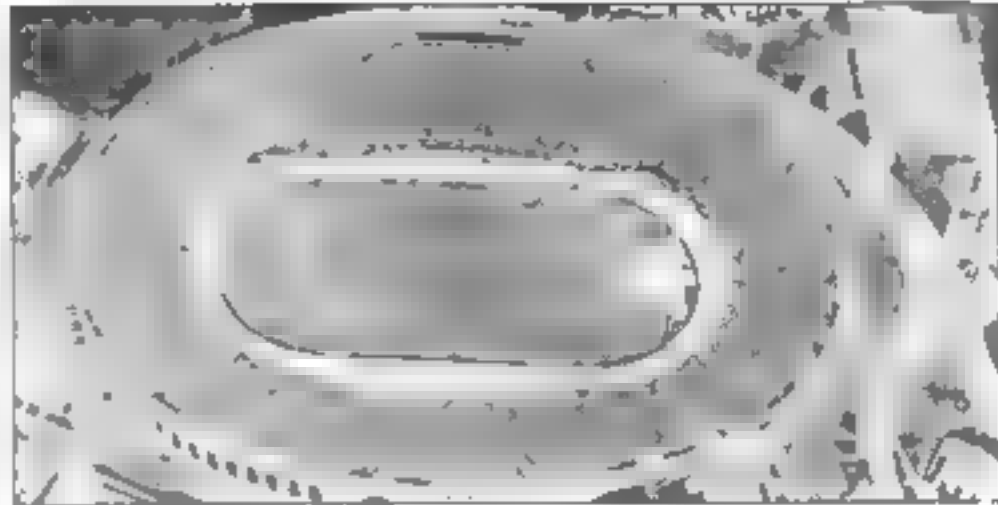

The vexing question of where to locate a new stadium was solved by the discovery of a perfectly practical (and safe) part of which adjoins the University's main campus, one of which lay immediately adjacent to the offices of the Bailey Estate. In the summer of 1923, the Athletic Council bought the ground, turning it over to the Trustees of the University to become a part of the campus.

In November of 1924, the Trustees authorized a first mortgage bond issue of $2,100,000, the proceeds to be deposited with the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh as trustee and to be used for the purchase of the site and the erection of the stadium. The sale of the bonds, which carried with them ticket buying privileges, was conducted by volunteer solicitors, including Jack Sutherland. The campaign was a striking success, the entire issue being taken within nine days. At the end of that period oversubscriptions of more than a half million dollars had to be returned.

The original Stadium Committee appointed by the Board of Trustees to oversee site selection, a bond sale, and construction included George H. Clapp, president; K. E. Davis, secretary; A. R. Hamilton, A. J. Kelly Jr., C. W. Wettach, and Floyd Rose, committee members.

W. S. Hindman, an 1898 graduate of the University's School of Engineering, was the chief engineer and designer of the stadium.

Construction began on August 7, 1924, and was completed September 1, 1925, less than four weeks before Pitt played.

Washington & Lee in the last game of the 1904 season.

Jack Sinnesland, while he was still head coach at Lafayette, had purchased several thousand dollars worth of bonds two years before the stadium was built. After he succeeded Pop Warner as Pitt's head coach in 1924, he brought in 10 teammates from his own playing days under Warner. He also actively promoted the bonds to other people in the Pittsburgh

The Turner Construction Company, the same firm that had built Pennie Franklin Field and Cornell's Schoonkopf Stadium, was the general contractor. The John I. Casey Company did the excavating work, the McClintock-Marshall Company did the steel work, and the New England Foundation Company provided the foundations.

Pitt Stadium, which covers approximately nine acres, is 791 feet long and 617 feet wide. It was originally configured to hold a capacity of 69,400, and the design permitted future double-decking (allowing provisions for another 36,000 seats to be added if desired).

A total of 2 200 tons of structural steel was used in setting up the bowl, as well as 1 000 tons of reinforced steel, and 20 000 cubic yards of concrete.

Unlike many of its contemporaries in the 1920s which had been built to accommodate one or two sports, Pitt Stadium at the time of its construction was a unique multi-faceted venue. It housed nearly all of the University's aquatic sports: football, basketball, baseball, track, rifle and gymnastics. The basketball court in the Stadium Pavilion—beneath the ramps inside Gate 2—served as Pitt's home from 1925 until 1951 when Fitzgerald Field House opened. While in use for home basketball games, it contained permanent seats at two ends and temporary bleachers on the sides, accommodating 4,000 people.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and Carnegie Tech (now Carnegie Mellon University), have used Pm Stadium as their home fields at one

The stadium has undergone several significant changes, particularly within the past 20 years. In 1970, AstroTurf became the playing surface, replacing natural grass. A SuperTurf replaced the AstroTurf in 1984. During the summer of 1990, a new AstroTurf surface was installed.

One improvement that hit close to home with Panther supporters in the late 1970s was a change in seating structures from wood to metal benches, eliminating the splintery discomfort caused by some 7 miles of wood that had been subjected to a half century of the elements.

The current scoreboard was installed prior to the 1977 season. A new complete system featuring football animation software was installed in the summer of 1989, vastly enhancing the capabilities of the message center. The auxiliary scoreboard was also modified in 1988, and now includes significant game data, including down and distance.

Pitt Stadium became a more efficient and more attractive facility in 1998 when a new coaching complex was opened. The two-floor office/reception/conference room and workout area now houses the entire football staff.

In addition, a brand new spacious and more efficient Ticket Office facility was opened in 1998.

Improvements completed in 1998 include a video scoring suite adjacent to the stadium. An innovative addition to the stadium is the new Shower/Auditorium near the entrance to the stadium directly above the weight room.

Lights were installed in the stadium for night games in 1988. The first night game ever in the stadium was a 31-30 win over Purdue in August, 1988.

Permanent lights were installed in the 1987 season.

The current lights consist of six sets of lights:

four on the home side of the stadium and one on the visitor's side. Each set is 80-feet tall. Each pole contains 100-watt metal halide lighting fixtures. The system is designed to reduce glare and to allow good depth perception.

The Pitt Stadium is now the home of the Panthers football, soccer, and track teams.

Pitt Cheerleaders

The 1993 University of Pittsburgh cheerleading squad is entertaining, talented and a motivating factor at Pitt football games. It is a colorful addition to the wide range of festivities surrounding a college football game.

The Pitt cheerleaders are one of the largest squads in the country, as well as one of the most successful. During each of the past two years, the Pitt women's cheerleading squad has won the National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships in Dallas, Texas, finishing first out of approximately 20 teams in the All Girl Division at the event. Prior to 1992, Pitt's best showing had been a sixth-place finish in 1960.

In addition to their performances at Panther football games, the cheerleaders are active at various Panther activities and take functions in and around the Pittsburgh community.

The Pitt cheerleaders have been coached for the past 10 years by Theresa and Michael Nuzzo, who were Pitt cheerleaders themselves. The Nuzzos are four-time winners of the Elite Cheerleading Organization, the largest personalized cheerleading instructional company in the United States. The organization annually instructs more than 20,000 cheerleaders in approximately 40 states.

The Panther

The Panther (Felis concolor) was adopted as the University of Pittsburgh's mascot at a meeting of students and alumni in the autumn of 1909. According to George M. P. Baird '09, who made the suggestion, it was chosen for the following reasons: (1) the Panther was the most formidable creature once indigenous to the Pittsburgh region; (2) it had ancient heraldic standing as a noble animal; (3) the happy accident of alliteration; (4) the close approximation of its hue to the old gold of the University's colors (old gold and blue); hence its easy adaptability in decoration; and (5) the fact that no other college or university then employed it as a symbol.

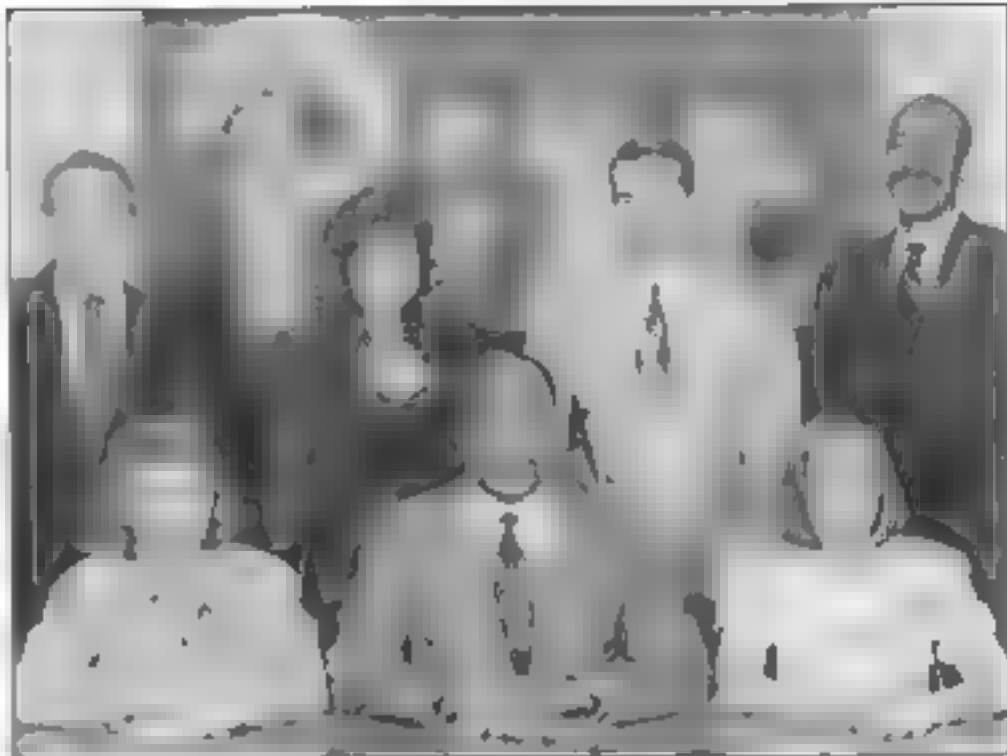

Academic Support Services

In the 1970s, when the University of Pittsburgh committed itself to regaining its position as one of America's leading collegiate programs, the University also made a commitment of perhaps even greater significance -- to excel in the education of its student athletes. From this commitment came the Support Service for Student Athletes, established in 1976. This Office had one major mission -- the furthering of the academic goals of the men and women who make up Pitt's varsity athletic teams. In the 1990s, as Pitt football once again reaches for the top, the University has rededicated itself to its original commitment to see that these athletes get a quality and meaningful education. New offices, equipment and additional personnel are evidence that Pitt is continuing its tradition of placing academics at the top of its priorities for its athletes.

Since its beginning, the Support Service for Student Athletes office has offered several important services to Pitt's athletic community. Contact between the Office and the student athlete begins early at University orientation, where Support Service personnel administer tests and assist in class scheduling. Learning skills and study habits are strengthened throughout the freshman year, through regular meetings with the office staff and organized study sessions. Tutors are provided for those who request them, and assigned to those the staff feels may need additional help. Class performance and attendance is monitored throughout the term. Academic and career counseling as well as personal counseling are all important parts of the program. The goal of the office is to build long-term skills to enable the athlete to be an independent and successful student, skills which will be earned on long after an athletic career has ended.

Since 1987, Support Services has been located in the remodeled 5th floor of Pitt Stadium. The office, which as an academic unit reports to the Provost, was originally housed in the William Pitt Union. But as more athletes took advantage of the unit's services and the staff grew in number, more space was needed. The new facilities in the stadium include a computer-learning lab, several areas for individual tutoring and study, as well as offices for the staff.

The staff of the Support Service office is currently made up of five full-time members, a graduate assistant, and numerous part-time tutors and clerical help. Since early 1991, the office has been directed by Dr. Ron Brown. Dr. Brown comes to Pitt from Oklahoma State, where he headed that University's academic efforts to help athletes. At Pitt, he is reorganizing the Office to make it even more effective as it meets the challenges of the '90s. He is assisted by Jan McMannis, Dave Pistoletti, Ivory Moore and Pam Smith.

Allen, M.D. (sports medicine fellow); Marc R. Safran, M.D. (sports medicine fellow) and George L. Caldwell Jr., M.D. (sports medicine fellow). In addition, a staff of consulting specialists is available at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine to assist in providing top quality medical treatment to more than 500 male and female varsity athletes. Hospital care is provided at Montefiore University Hospital.

Prior to any practices or competition, each varsity athlete receives a comprehensive physical examination. The physical well-being of the athletes is monitored during competition and training. Effort is made to provide not only treatment for injury or illness that may occur, but also preventive measures which will make participation as safe as possible.

To achieve these goals, the institute boasts a highly qualified staff of trainers, including head football trainer Robert Blanc and assistant football trainer Kevin Conley.

The University of Pittsburgh offers a National Athletic Training Association approved undergraduate curriculum designed to prepare students for certification examination. This program was established in 1975 and is offered through the School of Education Program in Health, Physical, and Recreation Education.

Dr. Fu graduated summa cum laude from Dartmouth College in 1974, and received his B.M.S. in 1975 from Dartmouth Medical School. He earned his medical degree in 1977 at Pitt and completed his general surgery internship at Brown University. He then returned to Pitt to study under an orthopaedic research fellowship, and complete his residency in orthopaedic surgery. During that time, Dr. Fu studied under an A.O. The Big East Football Conference

Going into 1993, the young BIG EAST Football Conference is set to conduct its first true conference season after two years of determining a champion through the polls. But the league is already a nationally respected entity, highlighted by its excellence on the playing field, charter membership in the unique "Bowl Coalition" and establishment of its own regional television network.

The BIG EAST Football Conference, which was formally announced on February 5, 1991, will begin round-robin play this fall and will determine its champion on the playing field for the first time. When the league was launched, Commissioner Michael Tranchese promised the new group would be active and aggressive.

On the field, the University of Miami won a share of the national championship in the BIG EAST's inaugural season. Last year, the league found three of its teams, Miami, Syracuse and Boston College, playing on New Year's Day.

The BIG EAST became a part of the Bowl Coalition, which includes the Atlantic Coast Conference and Notre Dame along with the Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Fiesta Bowls. That agreement began in the 1992 season. When a second tier was added to the coalition, it guaranteed a prestigious bowl berth for a second BIG EAST team. In the spring of '93, the BIG EAST secured a two-year agreement with the Sunshine Football Classic in Miami to assure a bowl bid for a third conference team.

From the beginning, the BIG EAST has received significant television exposure. In addition to numerous appearances on ABC and ESPN, the BIG EAST Football Television Network produces a Game of the Week which is telecast throughout the East and Florida. The BIG EAST Football Television Network is the nation's largest regional college football network, reaching nearly one-third of the nation's homes.

The early excitement wasn't limited to bowls and television, however. At their first official meeting, BIG EAST football coaches decided they wanted to accelerate the process to put a round-robin schedule in place. Originally, the plan was to have a five-game conference schedule for the 1995 season. But the coaches made a commitment to play a full round-robin schedule by 1993.

Some of the same elements that were in place when The BIG EAST Conference was born in 1979 are present in BIG EAST football. The football members are a group of schools that, for the most part, have been linked together with the years as a football league. The BIG EAST Football Conference alignment includes four schools who are full members of The BIG EAST Conference. They are Boston College, University of Miami, University of Pittsburgh, and Syracuse University. They are joined by Rutgers University, Temple University, Virginia Tech and West Virginia University.

BIG EAST football teams have enjoyed plenty of success, especially in the past decade. Miami has captured national titles in 1983, 84, 89, and 90. The Hurricanes have played on New Year's Day every year since 1984. Syracuse has played in bowl games in each of the past six seasons, winning five and tying one. Last year, Boston College went from 4-7 to 8-3-1.

Rutgers, 7-4 last year, has produced back to back bowl appearances. Since 1979-80, West Virginia, at 5-4-2 in '92, has finished with a losing record only twice in the last 13 years. Virginia Tech finished only 2-8-1 last fall, but the Hokies led in the fourth quarter seven times and missed out on a bowl berth. The game at Pittsburgh has brought back Coach John Majors who won a national title for the Panthers in 1956. Highly regarded Ron Dickerson who has the Owls ready to fly high again.

BIG EAST REACHES PACT WITH SUNSHINE CLASSIC

The BIG EAST Football Conference and the Sunshine Football Classic have reached an agreement which will send a BIG EAST team to the bowl for the next two years. The game will be played on January 1 at Joe Robbie Stadium in Miami and will be televised by CBS.

The agreement means three BIG EAST teams are locked into automatic bowl bids. The first two choices from the BIG EAST will be taken by the Bowl Coalition. Then, the Sunshine Classic, formerly the Blockbuster Bowl, will make its selection.

"The BIG EAST is very excited about this agreement with the Sunshine Football Classic," said BIG EAST Commissioner Michael Tranchese. "In its short history, the game has become a very active and prestigious event. It's an outstanding bowl game, played on New Year's Day at a warm weather site, televised by CBS. The Sunshine Classic has everything you want in a bowl game."

This year's game will mark the fourth year of the bowl which has hosted four Top 10 teams in the game's first three years.

THE BIG EAST FOOTBALL CONFERENCE TELEVISION NETWORK

The BIG EAST Football Conference is the only conference in the country that is its own television distributor. Created before BIG EAST football made its debut in 1991, The BIG EAST Television Network already is the nation's largest regional network for college football. The network reaches almost one-third of the nation's homes, primarily from Maine to Virginia and Florida.

The BIG EAST Football Television Network will produce a 10-week package that will begin at noon, Eastern Time.

The Big East Football Conference

Michael A. Tranter, Commissioner

As Commissioner of The Big East Conference, Mike Tranter has backed up his long history of athletic achievement. The conference is less than three years of operation. The Big East Football Conference holds a prominent position in the world of college football.

Tranter orchestrated the formation of BIG EAST football which became a reality on February 5, 1992. He immediately went to work to make the Big East part of the unique 'Bowl Coalition' which guarantees prestigious bowl appearances for two BIG EAST teams. That agreement began in the 1992 season.

In the spring of 1992, Tranter secured a two-year agreement with the Sunshine Football Classic which will assure a third BIG EAST team a bowl bid.

BIG EAST AND THE BOWL COALITION

The BIG EAST Football Conference is a partner in the unique agreement called the 'Bowl Coalition' which is a pact designed to enhance the bowl matchups and increase the chances for determining a national champion. The agreement began in the 1992 season.

The bowl coalition includes The BIG EAST Football Conference, the Atlantic Coast Conference, the University of Notre Dame and six bowls: the Federal Express Orange Bowl, the Mobil Cotton Bowl, the JSE&C Sugar Bowl, the IBM Fiesta Bowl, the Outback Steakhouse Gator Bowl, and the John Hancock Bowl.

The bowl coalition guarantees the BIG EAST champion and the ACC champion a spot in the Orange, Sugar, Cotton or Fiesta Bowls. It also assures a bowl bid for a second team from the BIG EAST, ACC, Big Eight, PAC-10 and Southwest Conferences.

Here is how the coalition works: The four conference champions from the Big Eight to the Orange Bowl, Southeastern to the Sugar Bowl and Southwestern to the Cotton Bowl remain intact. In addition to the BIG EAST and ACC champions and Notre Dame, two additional berths must be filled in the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls.

These spots will be filled from a pool of 'at-large' teams.

The three 'at-large' teams not selected by the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls will be available for selection to the Gator and John Hancock Bowls. The Gator Bowl will make the first selection. Then the John Hancock Bowl will make two selections.

The three 'at-large' teams not selected by the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls will be available for selection to the Gator and John Hancock Bowls. The Gator Bowl will make the first selection. Then the John Hancock Bowl will make two selections.

Whenever the BIG EAST and ACC champions are ranked in the final combined regular season AP and USA Today/CNN Polls, they must play a national championship game in the Fiesta Bowl.

2. Whenever the number one or two team in the combined final regular season AP and USA Today/CNN Polls come from among the BIG EAST champion, the ACC champion, the Big Eight champion, the PAC-10 champion or the Southwest Conference champion, these teams must play one another in the bowl of the conference champion.

3. Barring the above circumstances, the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls will select first in order of the final combined rankings of their respective host conference champions. Following that selection, the Fiesta Bowl will have two selections from the remaining pool of five teams.

4. Once these selections have been completed, the remaining three 'at-large' teams will be available to the Gator and John Hancock Bowls. The Gator will select one team followed by two selections from the John Hancock Bowl.

5. The BIG EAST and ACC champions and Notre Dame have the right to pass on a selection by the Orange, Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls for a higher payout to avoid a rematch of a regular-season game or to avoid playing in a particular bowl game for a third consecutive year. However, if two of these three teams are ranked first and second in the combined polls, they must play in the Fiesta Bowl.

6. A team may pass on a selection to the Gator or John Hancock Bowl only to avoid a rematch of a regular-season game or to avoid playing in a particular bowl game for the third consecutive year.

The "Pitt Iron Works"

Recently renovated and expanded to nearly double its original size, the Pitt football weight room, the "Pitt Iron Works," is one of the most modern and best equipped facilities in the country. The renovations included the installation of new carpeting and several new pieces of Nautilus machines, and the addition of nearly 7,000 pounds of free weight to the more than 25,000 pounds of existing weights. Under the auspices of Pitt's Strength Coach, Jim Wilson, the "Iron Works" is active every day and is a showcase for the Pitt football program.

The Charles L. Cost Sports Center (right) provides the University of Pittsburgh with a state-of-the-art indoor athletic complex and is used as an indoor workout site for the football team. Charles L. "Corky" Cost, a running back and three-sport athlete at Pitt in the middle 1950s, donated in excess of $5 million toward construction of the complex, which sits on top of a seven-story parking garage (the Towerview Garage) on Robinson Street behind Trees Hall.

Golden Panthers

As the Pitt Golden Panthers enter their third decade, they continue to promote interest, enthusiasm and support for the athletic programs at the University of Pittsburgh. Founded in December, 1970, alumni, faculty, staff, and friends of Pitt have focused on fundraising both for annual giving and capital contributions.

The combination of a dedicated and competent professional staff headed by Mike O'Brien, director of development; Walt Bielech and John Novey, Assistant Directors of Development; Jana Gordon, Special Events & Gifts Coordinator; and Ann Datig, Administrative Assistant, along with an enthusiastic cadre of volunteers provides the vitality necessary for a fundraising organization.

Collegiate athletics depend greatly upon private support and contributions, and Pitt is no exception. This type of support is critical to its growth and success. There are 430 young men and women competing in 19 varsity sports sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh. Their accomplishments as student athletes and as contributing members of society are a source of pride. Our objective is to raise $3 million annually to fund the scholarships associated with their education.

The Golden Panthers have contributed more than $15 million, with most of these funds going toward providing scholarships for varsity athletes. These contributions also will enable Pitt to improve facilities, augment the funding of non-revenue sports, and maintain its tradition of success in all varsity sports. In addition, $3 million has been contributed to endowed scholarships.

We want to express our sincere appreciation to the several thousand alumni and friends who have become Golden Panthers by contributing to the Panther Athletic Scholarship Fund. The generosity shown by this support has provided educational opportunities for student athletes who are striving to achieve an education and bring honor to themselves. Our Golden Panthers are as diverse as the University and community. They are found in every sector of society.

All contributors to the Golden Panthers receive benefits based on their level of contribution. These benefits include invitations to special functions, ticket priority, special parking privileges, and the Golden Panthers magazine, Panther Prints. Donors also receive credit in the University's annual giving fund and its giving clubs.

We encourage you to join the thousands of Alumni and friends who are already Golden Panthers and contribute to Pitt Athletics. There are few endeavors that satisfy a need, provide satisfaction and offer the opportunity to have "fun along the way." Golden Panther membership is one of those endeavors.

The Varsity Walk

On the University of Pittsburgh campus, between the Cathedral of Learning and Heinz Chapel, is a sidewalk known as the Varsity Walk. There, embedded in the stones, are the names of former Pitt athletes who have promoted the University through their athletic or academic achievements.

The Varsity Walk was conceived in 1950 as a way to honor athletes and remember their contributions to the University of Pittsburgh. New members are added each year. The distinctive hand-carved stones were first presented as the Athletic Committee Award and the Charles C. Hartwig Award. The Athletic Committee recognized the best athlete from any sport. The Charles Hartwig Award was given to the senior athlete who promoted and sponsored the best interests of Pitt athletics, in honor of the 1934 All-America light end.

In 1971 the awards were changed to the Panther and Blue-Gold awards, respectively.

The Panther Award is presented to the graduating senior athlete who has promoted Pitt athletics through his/her outstanding athletic achievement.

An athlete receives the Blue-Gold Award when he/she represents the student-athlete ideal based on academic scholarship, athletic achievement, leadership qualities and citizenship.

The awards were expanded to include females in 1975.
